$1000 IN MONEY AND STAMPS TAKEN

The Vault and Safe Entered as Easy as a Cheese Box.

One of the smoothest jobs of safe breaking ever worked in this or any other city was performed at the post-office here on Wednesday evening, when the vault and safe of that institution was broken open by burglars and between ten and twelve hundred dollars in money and stamps were taken. The burglars effected an entrance through the back door of the building. Once inside they bored a half inch hole in the vault door between the dial of the combination lock and the front edge of the door, and putting in a half inch set screw they forced the lock off the door to such an extent that the bolts could be drawn and the vault opened. Inside the vault the safe is kept, and they treated the safe in the same manner, also breaking off the dial of the lock with a sledge hammer. In the safe they secured about $425 in money and something over $600 in postage stamps, besides the contents of several registered letters, the amount of which is unknown. After securing the booty they escaped without detection.

The first that was known of the robbery was about seven o'clock Thursday morning, when Geo. Grewcock entered and saw what had been done. He immediately notified Postmaster Johnson, who arrived a few minutes later.

The loss is very heavy and it is a question that is agitating the people who will have to stand it. It is hoped that Mr. Johnson will not, as he can ill afford to do so, and he took every precaution, having only recently built the vault at his own expense to more securely guard the governments property, and he kept the valuables in a safe provided by the government. It looks to us as if he had done his whole duty and was in no way responsible, and the government should stand the loss. The money in the registered letters will have to be borne by the senders.

Who the guilty parties are is not yet known. A suspicious looking character bought a ticket at Crow Wing yesterday paying for it in nickels and dimes. This looked suspicious, and Sheriff Erickson looked him up but satisfied himself he was not one of them. The local authorities are now satisfied that two men, nicely dressed, one of whom stopped at the Arlington, and was here several days before the robbery, are the men that are wanted. They have disappeared since the robbery occurred. Several things that they did not unusual then, but in the light of the robbery now point to them as the probable guilty parties. A government inspector has been here since yesterday noon looking the matter up.

DEERWOOD ITEMS.

The farmers are very busy doing their fall plowing while the pleasant weather lasts.

TUESDAY'S ELECTIONS.

It Was an Off Year, But Republicans Held Their Own Except in New York State

Where Local Questions Gave the State to the Democrats.—The Legislature Republican.

On Tuesday elections were held in more than a dozen states throughout the country, and notwithstanding it was an off year, the republican party held its own everywhere except in New York state, where the leading democratic organization refused to endorse the Chicago platform, hence democratic success in New York is not an indication of the revival of Bryanism. The results summed up briefly were:

Republicans carry Pennsylvania by upwards of 100,000.

Massachusetts is republican by nearly 100,000.

Ohio is safely republican by over 25,000 and a republican legislature has been elected insuring Hanna's return to the senate.

New York went democratic by 50,000 and the Tammany candidate for mayor was elected by 81,000.

Nebraska went for the fusion ticket by 10,000 less than last year.

Kansas on a vote for judges shows a republican majority. It was popular last year.

Maryland goes republican electing a republican legislature and insuring the election of a republican senator to succeed Gorman, free silver democrat.

Kentucky went democratic by its old time majority.

New Jersey, usually democratic, went republican.

As a whole the election was very favorable to the republicans, and shows that the people have not changed on the money question.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

A Former Brainerd Lady Drowns Herself at Swanville, Todd Co.

Mrs. Georgia Barber, aged 46 years, widow of the late Frank Barber ended her life Saturday morning in the lake at Pillsbury, about two miles west of Swanville. The body was recovered shortly after the deed was done. Mrs. Barber, since the death of her husband, has been residing at Pillsbury with relatives. She has been in ill health for some time, and has spent the greater part of the past year in the hospital at Brainerd and Minneapolis and while at the latter place twice underwent an operation, but they did not prove of any benefit to her. Her great suffering is said to have deranged her mind, and while in this condition she took her life. The funeral was held at Pillsbury Monday and was attended by some friends of the deceased from this city. The deceased leaves three children, two sons and one daughter, the youngest being 17 years of age. Her oldest son is employed as brakeman by the Northern Pacific and runs between Staples and Fargo, and was present at the funeral. Her daughter is married and lives in British Columbia. Her youngest son is now at Pillsbury.

Mrs. Barber lived in this city with her husband and family for many years and had a great many friends here who will be greatly pained at her untimely death. Her husband Frank Barber died here some years ago. Her eldest son Wm. Barber lives in the old family home on Bluff avenue at present. Her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Davenport a few months since moved to British Columbia. The Little Falls Transcript of Tuesday contained the following:

The Tennessee baby born with whiskers may be the happy omen of more big crops in the United States and more shortages in Europe.

Utah has thirty good sized towns in which no newspapers are published. Several of these are county seats. Utah is growing in wealth faster than any state in the Union, but needs more newspapers.

The fortieth anniversary of the Fulton street daily prayer meeting was recently celebrated in New York. This meeting, which is held every noon in a crowded business section of the city, was established at a time of great business anxiety, after the panic of 1857, and has been held regularly since that time. An interesting feature of the celebration was the presentation of a portrait of the founder of the meeting, Jeremiah C. Lamphier, who is now 68 years old.

An English admiral declares that if the gun-ship cannot be modified to meet and balance the threat of the torpedo vessel, then the torpedo vessel will itself become the battleship of the future, and the gun-ship will fall into the auxiliary or subordinate place. He argues that there would be less risk in men and money in sending a flotilla of swift but small vessels against a battleship than to meet that formidable engine of war with a ship of equal size. The future of naval warfare may abound in such developments.

An import movement of gold began late in September with the arrival of $4,000,000 at San Francisco, from Australia, and the engagement of $2,500,000 at London and Paris. These are the first imports of importance since last November. They are a natural result of the movement of the crops. The active shipment of grain and cotton calls for increased supplies of money at the centers of agricultural production, and the deficiency caused by meeting this demand is supplied by gold, paid by the foreign purchasers of our products. The condition favors a continuance of gold imports, as we are now selling to Europe monthly from forty to fifty million dollars' worth of our products in excess of all that we are buying there. In reality we ought to get $50,000,000 imports a month. The monthly interest on our foreign debts abroad, however, amounts to $40,000,000 a month.

The abuse of the right of petition consists, in part, of an indiscriminate use of that method of reaching a desired end. It is a truism that the obtaining of signatures for a petition is usually an easy matter. Men sign out of good nature, to get rid of importunity, because they have signed similar documents, and so on, and sometimes the body of the petition is not even read. An excellent illustration of recklessness was recently furnished. A citizen complained to the governor of a state because a certain criminal had been pardoned. The governor sent for the papers in the case; and the complainant was found to have signed the petition for a pardon. He had put his name to the paper without reflection, and had forgotten the fact. But when his own request had been granted, he indignantly held the governor guilty of an act injurious to the public interest.

An important decision relating to the power of removal from office has been given by Judge Cox of the supreme court of the District of Columbia. The case was that of John G. Wood, superintendent of mails at Louisville, Ky., who applied to the court to enjoin the postmaster-general from removing him. His claim was that his superior had no right to depose him without giving reasons, because of the civil service rule recently promulgated by the president, forbidding removals from the classified service except for just cause and upon written charges. Judge Cox dismissed the complaint. He held that the power of removal is an incident to the power of appointment, and that both are lodged with the heads of departments. There can be no restrictions upon the power of removal except by legislation, and any rules touching the matter, whether made by the president or civil service commission, are void. The enforcement of such rules is a matter that lies between the president and his cabinet. In a similar case in the federal court at Chicago Judge Jenkins has given a similar decision. Under these interpretations of the law there is no legal remedy for the violation of the rule recently made, and the enforcement of that rule must depend solely on the executive.

After eighteen weeks of negotiation, terms of peace between Turkey and Greece were arranged by the representatives of the powers at Constantinople, and a preliminary treaty was signed Sept. 18th, and was soon after ratified by the sultan. Turkey secures a change of frontier which gives her better control of the mountain passes, and she is to receive an indemnity of four million pounds. Greece assigns certain revenues, which are to be administered by the powers, for the benefit of the old bondholders as well as the takers of the new indemnity loan.

THE NEWS RESUME

DIGEST OF THE NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

A Comprehensive Review of the Important Happenings of the Past Week Called From the Telegraph Reports—The Notable Events at Home and Abroad That Have Attracted Attention.

Washington Talk.

Consul Phillips, at Cardiff, Wales, sends to the state department a report concerning the workmen's compensation act, which goes into effect on July 1, 1898. This act makes employers liable for accidents causing death and injury to employees, and affects more than half the labor in the United Kingdom.

The postoffice department has completed arrangements for the direct exchange of money orders between the United States and Egypt. Money orders may now be issued at any international office in this country payable at money order offices in Egypt, the maximum amount for a single remittance being $100.

The Army and Navy Union, by unanimous vote, ordered the recall of the charter of John M. Schofield garrison at Washington, and expelled Past National Commander J. B. Morton from the order and dishonorably discharged Daniel O. Drennan, paymaster general of the union, both of whom were members of the Schofield garrison.

People Talked About.

Francis Turner Palgrave, the poet and essayist, died in London, aged seventy-two years.

Miss Maud Gonne, "the Irish Joan of Arc," was a passenger on the Lucania, which has arrived in New York. She will lecture in all the larger cities.

Rev. John Stoughton, the well known Congregational minister and author of several religious works, is dead at London. He was born in Norwich in 1807.

Mrs. McKinley has received from Atchison, Kas., a hat made of corn husks by Mrs. J. H. McCusack, of that town, the "corn milliner of Kansas," for the recent carnival there.

Rev. Thomas Ewing Sherman, the priest son of Gen. Sherman, says that his duties have compelled him to travel over 100,000 miles in the last two years.

The Rev. John Stoughton, D. D., the well-known Congregational minister and author of a number of religious works, is dead in London. He was born at Norwich in 1807.

A. J. Dickerson, an old resident, died at his home at Sparta, Wis., from heart trouble. He was born in Monroe county, New York, April 18, 1829, and came to Wisconsin in 1849.

Joseph Hennis, one of the greatest merchants of the Michigan copper district, is dead at Houghton. He had his back broken a short time ago while driving under an overhanging tree. A widow and eight children survive him.

Michael Dorsey, aged ninety-three, died at Poynton, Ohio. He was the oldest living postmaster in the country, and up to the time of his death was actively filling the duties of his position. His first term was under Jackson, and he has served under every Democratic president since then.

Casualties.

Frederick Hamrick, a well-digger of Atchison, Kas., was instantly killed by a premature discharge of dynamite.

Thirteen seamen, comprising almost the entire crew of the steam schooner Casper, were drowned near Point Arena, Cal., by the wreck of the vessel.

A head-end collision occurred between two electric cars on Pearl street hill Burlington, Vt., resulting in the injury of five people.

The two-year-old daughter of John L. Leavel, who lives near Parkville, Mo., was playing alone with a curling iron, when her clothes caught fire and she was burned to death.

While running a steam wood-saw at Knobnoster, Mo., an engine exploded, and Aubrey Brough, son of the proprietor, was instantly killed. Flying iron slightly injured some of the workmen.

At Fayette, Mo., the factory of the Fayette Tobacco company was destroyed by fire; loss, $12,000; insurance, $8,000. The A. F. Davis grain elevator was damaged $5,000; insurance, $3,500. Kingsbury & Son's apple packing house sustained a loss of $1,500, with no insurance. The Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger and freight depot was damaged $2,000; insurance unknown.

Criminals and Criminals.

James Lawler, Jr., was sandbagged and robbed in the Milwaukee yards at Prairie du Chien by two men, who left him unconscious.

James Cronin, the burglar shot last June by City Marshal Walker, was sentenced at Durand, Wis., to eighteen months' imprisonment at Waupun.

Silas S. Gray, who has served fourteen years of a life-sentence for a murder which he has developed was committed by another, was released from the Penitentiary at Indiana county.

Night Watchman P. M. Dole of Independence, Iowa, is dead from wounds in his leg received Sunday at the hands of burglars. Blood poisoning was the immediate cause. No clue to the identity of the burglars.

W. E. Manifold and Dr. Robert Kirkpatrick, formerly bankers of Laharpe, Ill., were bound over to appear before the March term of court on a charge of embezzlement. The grand jury found fifteen indictments against them.

Since the cruiser Baltimore has been anchored in the stream preparatory to going to Honolulu her commander has reported to the police the almost daily desertion of three or four of the crew. Already twenty have succeeded in escaping.

Hon. Henry C. Truesdale, chief justice of Arizona, living at Phoenix, died at Minneapolis. He has been ill nearly three weeks, primarily from the effects of chloroform administered during the performing of an operation, and this was followed by a stroke of apoplexy.

Foreign Notes.

The London Times mentions a rumor that a new loan for India will be issued.

It is said that Gen. Jamnani will succeed Gen. Sausser as commander-in-chief of the French army.

The police of Paris have seized a German comic paper, the Lustigblatter, containing cartoons ridiculing President Faure and the French republic.

The Turkish government has opened a credit of 1,000,000 in London to defray the cost of engaging skilled workmen as overseers for the contemplated reconstruction of the Turkish navy.

The London Times announces the marriage of J. M. Jingle of Glasgow, Scotland, to Annetta, youngest daughter of Henry Quincy Grinton of Louisville, Ky.

Lord Salisbury and Ambassador Hay have accepted invitations to be present at the Guild Hall on the occasion of the annual banquet given by the lord mayor on Nov. 9.

The Berlin Reichsanzeiger publishes formal notices of the appointment of Baron von Buolow, recently German ambassador at Rome, as minister of state for foreign affairs and member of the Prussian ministry.

Lady Rachel Charlotte Wyndham-Quinn, eldest daughter of the earl of Dunraven, was married at Adare church, Adare county, Limerick, to Fitzgerald, the knight of Glyn. Lord Dunraven gave the bride away.

The Hon. Sir Richard Henn Collins, judge of the queen's bench division of the high court of judicature since 1891, has been appointed lord justice of appeal in succession to the Rt. Hon. Sir Nathaniel Lindley, recently appointed master of the rolls.

The German government has resolved to found an imperial bureau to collect statistics regarding all branches of the national production. The figures and facts so gathered will be published regularly so as to enable the government officials to be always clearly posted as to the exact state of industry, export and import.

The porte has demanded the recall of two American missionaries from the province of Aleppo. The United States legation has ignored the demand and will continue to do so until definite charges are made, being convinced that the demand is merely a first step to asking the recall of all of the missionaries.

The Spanish minister of marine declares the ironclad Cristobal Colon will try its 28-centimeter guns in a few days, and will then be ready for action. The minister telegraphed to Toulon demanding the greatest activity in fitting for sea the ironclad Pelayo. The frigate Victoria will be ready by the middle of December. The cruisers Alfonso and Lepanto will also be ready near the end of December. The new torpedo destroyers, Audaz and Pluton, will be tried this week.

Otherwise.

The Rev. Bernard R. Kelley, a Methodist minister of Leavenworth, Kan., has been appointed a chaplain in the army.

Gov. Atkinson of Georgia in his message to the legislature, proposes to discourage lynching by giving the prisoners guns.

The controller of the currency has authorized the First National Bank of Shawnee, Ind. T., to begin business; capital, $50,000.

The steamer Saturnus has arrived at Barcelona. Three soldiers died on board during the passage from Manila, Philippine islands.

Editor Erwin, of the Boone Daily News, has sold that paper to N. E. Goldthwait and Ira Hullinger, who will take charge of it Nov. 1.

Owing to the improved outlook in the iron industry the Lake Shore iron works, a large plant at Marquette, Mich., will resume active operations after a long period of idleness.

Gov. Hastings and staff and 1,500 Pennsylvania soldiers will attend the dedication on Nov. 15 of the Pennsylvania monuments on the Chickamauga battlefield.

Dr. J. C. Spencer, bacteriologist of the San Francisco board of health, reports that he has discovered the bacilli of tuberculosis in the Chinese-made cigar.

The failure of J. R. McKee was announced in New York on the consolidated stock and petroleum exchange shortly before the close of the market. Assets and liabilities unknown.

The city of St. Croix Falls, Wis., has opened bids for a steel bridge over the St. Croix river. There were eleven bids, and the lowest was from the Milwaukee Bridge company for $8,500.

The Calumet and Hecla will build a large coal storage adjoining the South Lake Linden docks at Houghton, Mich. The dock frontage is 800 feet and the new shed will probably have a capacity of 125,000 tons of soft coal.

The American Steel Barge Company of West Superior, Wis., has notified the Williams brass works that it will require the ground in its yard now occupied by the brass foundry. The position will be used for the location of the new machine shops.

W. J. Thompson, representing the berry union of Black River Falls, Wis., has returned from a trip to Spencer, where he has purchased upward of 600 barrels of cranberries. It is estimated that the crop of the state would be 5,000 barrels, but Mr. Thompson says the estimate is 3,000 barrels too low.

At the New England cotton manufacturers' meeting at Philadelphia, President Search stated that the cotton goods trade is practically in the hands of four countries, whose exports can be stated thus: Great Britain, $332,331,000; Germany, $47,742,000; France, $28,757,000; United States, $19,840,000.

Application has been made in the circuit court for the appointment of receivers for the North St. Louis Building and Loan association and the North End Building and Loan association. It is asserted that John C. Obert, late secretary of the two associations, is short in his accounts.

Gen. Duffield, of the coast geodetic survey, has received word from the Phrylos Islands under date of Sept. 6, which indicates that the party now engaged in the survey of the sea islands under the direction of his son, will complete their labors this season.

SWEEPED BY TAMMANY

VAN WYCK ELECTED MAYOR OF GREATER NEW YORK.

The First Mayor of the Gigantic Municipality Gets a Plurality of Over 80,000—Low Leads Tracy by a Small Margin—The Vote for Young George is Insignificant—The Legislative Branch of the City Government is Tammany-Democrat.

New York, Nov. 4.—Tammany's victory in the first municipal election in Greater New York is a sweeping one. The only question remaining to be settled is the one of plurality by which the entire ticket headed by Robert A. Van Wyck has carried the gigantic municipality.

The estimated vote for mayor is as follows: Van Wyck, 235,181; Low, 149,873; Tracy, 101,823; George, 20,386; Van Wyck's plurality, over Low, 85,308.

On the city ticket with Judge Van Wyck-Bird S. Color is elected controller and Randolph Guggenheimer president of the municipal council, Charles F. Fairchild, who was secretary of the treasury during Cleveland's first administration, and whom the citizen's union put up for controller, did not hold the pace with Mr. Low. Ashbel Fitch, originally a Republican, and afterward a Democratic member of congress from a Tammany district of this city, was the Republican nominee for controller. He is defeated by about the same vote as the head of the ticket. Color, the successful candidate is new to the public. Charles W. Dayton, late postmaster, was nominated for controller on the George ticket, and polled probably half as many votes again as were given Mr. George.

The legislative branch of the city government is Tammany-Democrat. It is a double headed body, one branch being the municipal council, consisting of the president and twenty-eight members, and the other the board of aldermen, comprising sixty members. The precise number of Democrats chosen cannot be stated at the present writing. There appears to be a strong probability that the Democrats have won a majority of the county and borough offices along with the municipal places.

At night the whole city was alive to the occasion. Bulletin boards, searchlights, newspaper extras, readers on the stages of scores of theaters, told the story of the election. The jubilant had recourse to discordant fish horns for the expression of their joy, while the saloons, closed during the hours while the voting was in progress, did business on a scale to compensate for the period of enforced thirst, were noisy and brilliantly illuminated. The enthusiasm in the vicinity of Tammany Hall was particularly great.

IN NEW YORK STATE.

Democrats Elect the Judge—The Assembly in Doubt.

New York, Nov. 4.—Rain, which prevailed generally all over the state, had the effect of keeping a great many of the country voters home. The result is apparent in the reduced majorities given in concededly Republican districts to William J. Wallace, the Republican nominee for chief judge for the court of appeals, as compared with the pluralities by which the same districts were carried last year. Conceding to Judge Parker (Dem.) a majority of 100,000 in Greater New York, it is probable that he has won in the state.

The indications are that the Democrats have a small majority in the state assembly. In the last assembly the republicans had a majority of 78. Conceding all that is claimed by the Democrats, the next house will have 10 Democratic majority. State senators were not elected this year. Other estimates give a Republican majority in the assembly of 3.

South Dakota Returns.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 4.—Indications are that the Republicans have won in South Dakota. Smith, Rep., is elected judge in the First district by a close vote. In the second, Jones, Rep., is probably elected by 400 majority, overcoming an adverse majority in 1896 of 1,050. Smith, Rep., in the Fourth district, is elected. The election of Campbell, Rep., in the Fifth district, is claimed by 1,200 majority. Gaffey, Rep., is certainly elected in the Sixth. The result in the Third district is in doubt. The Populists have probably carried one district, the Eighth, and Wilson, Rep., is leading in the Seventh.

Interest at the Capital.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Great interest was displayed by the citizens of the capital in the result of the elections throughout the country. Early in the evening large crowds congregated in front of the newspaper bulletin boards and at various private places where the returns were displayed. In official circles the interest was intense, and many inquiries were made as to the results, particularly in Ohio and Maryland.

Both Sides Claim Colorado.

Denver, Nov. 4.—Returns from the state are very meager. There is no chance to compare the vote with that of last year as this was fusion between Silver Republicans and Democrats against Populists, while now here the Republican administration and Silver Republicans are joined against a combination of the Democrats and Populists. Both sides claim victory, but neither claim over 5,000 majority.

Cecil Rhodes' Health Causes Alarm.

London, Nov. 4.—The gravest rumors were in circulation on the stock exchange respecting the health of Cecil Rhodes, the South African magnate, former premier of Cape Colony and director of the British Chartered South African company.

Insurgents Are Active.

Simla, Nov. 4.—The insurgent tribesmen in Malen valley were very active all day. They made fierce attacks on the British pickets, reconnoitering parties and transports.

KNOWLEDGE NOT PROPERTY.

A Case Where a Man Must Give "Expert Testimony."

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 4.—A decision which has just been rendered by the supreme court in the case of Dixon vs. the people is of great interest to professional men who are called upon to give expert testimony in the circuit court of Sangamon county. Dr. J. N. Dixon of this city, who was called as an expert witness in a personal injury case against the city of Springfield, refused to testify unless he was first paid a reasonable fee for his services, claiming that his professional opinion was his own property and could not be taken away from him except by due process of law, as provided in the state constitution. Judge Creighton ruled against him and fined him for contempt of court. The court held that this professional knowledge was not property within the meaning of the constitution, and that in the exercise of the right of the court to summon witnesses and compel them to testify no distinction could be made between kinds of knowledge. To make such distinction would defeat the ends of justice. The finding of Judge Creighton was upheld by the supreme court.

ARGENTINA WHEAT.

The Crop Will Be Heavy and Quite Sufficient for Local Demand.

New York, Nov. 4.—A dispatch to the Herald from Buenos Ayres says: The prospects for crops in Argentina are splendid, and there is every indication that the yield of wheat will be very large. In view of this fact no North American wheat is being purchased here. That which is being delivered was bought before it became known that the wheat crop here would be so large.

A CARRY SWEEP.

Robbers Carry Off All Value in the Forest City Postoffice.

Forest City, Iowa, Nov. 4.—The post-office at this place was entered by burglars and both its safes were blown open. The robbers took all the stamps, registered mail matter and a considerable sum of money. The robbers left evidences of other robberies in the shape of bank drafts, etc., useless to them. The job was a neat one and could have been done by none other than experts. They left no clue.

FEVER SITUATION IMPROVING.

If the Present Weather Continues It Will Be Stamped Out in a Few Days.

New Orleans, Nov. 4.—The fever situation is very encouraging. Board of health physicians say the backbone of the fever is broken, and should the weather remain as it is for several days the disease will become non-infectious and almost entirely stamped out. There have been thirty new cases and five deaths during the day.

Driving Indians Out.

Lay, Colo., Nov. 4.—Sheriff Nieman has gone to the Indian camp where Deputy Game Warden Wilcox had his fight, and which has been deserted by the Indians. The sheriff says he will drive the Indians out of the state. Settlers from the lower Bear and Snake river valleys are still waiting here. No white men have yet been killed by the Indians, but they say they would ambush the whites if they followed them to the Blue mountains.

Pays $1,000 for His Cruel Joke.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, Nov. 4.—Judgment has been rendered against Thomas Reedy for $1,000 for playing a practical joke on Ralph Reynolds in 1895, wherein a supposed ghost chased the latter when he went to look at what he believed were the mangled remains of a man run over by the cars. Reynolds was made incurably insane by the fright. Part of the jury wanted to assess Reedy $7,000.

Will Attend the Conference.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 4.—Sir Wilfred Laurier and Sir Louis D'Amour will leave on Monday next for Washington to attend the conference between Great Britain and the United States experts regarding seal life in Bering sea. J. N. Macdon, the Canadian expert, and R. N. Vennan, chief clerk of the fisheries department, will accompany the ministers.

Historic House Destroyed.

Nyack, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The 1776 stone house at Tappan was blown down by the wind. This is the house where Maj. John Andre was imprisoned and from which he was taken to his execution on Oct. 2, 1780. It was owned by Dr. Stephens of Tappan and has been visited by people from all over the world.

Fertig Murder Trial.

Menomonee, Wis., Nov. 3.—The trial of John W. Fertig, for the murder of Robert C. Spaulding, was called in the circuit court here, Judge W. F. Bailey of Eau Claire on the bench. A special venire for fifty extra jurors was issued by the court. When court adjourned at night not a juror had been accepted.

Pills Killed Him.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 4.—James H. Jordan, postmaster of Denver, died from an overdose of morphine pills which he had taken supposing them to be cathartics.

Farmer's Mishap.

Hastings, Minn., Nov. 4.—J. W. Walter, a farmer from Beldenville, Wis., was thrown from his wagon, breaking his right leg and receiving other injuries.

New Job for Eckles.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—The Chronicle says James H. Eckles, controller of the currency, has been elected president of the Commercial National Bank of Chicago.

Two Years Penal Servitude.

Copenhagen, Nov. 4.—Cashier Silfverberg, of the local branch of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, who was arrested on Sept. 28, charged with embezzling 44,000 crowns and with falsifying his accounts, was sentenced to two years' penal servitude.

Vessel Ashore at Camon.

London, Nov. 4.—The Norwegian bark White Rose, Capt. Aaroe, from Tacoma for Greenock, is ashore at Camon.

OHIO IS DOUBTFUL

MAY REQUIRE THE OFFICIAL COUNT TO DETERMINE THE RESULT.

Republicans and Democrats Are Both Claiming the State and the Legislature—Iowa Elects the Republican Ticket by a Safe Majority—Massachusetts Also Goes Republican—Results of Elections in Other States.

Columbus, Nov. 4.—The result in Ohio is so close that it may require the official count to determine the result, especially on the political complexion of the legislature. The Republicans and Democrats are both claiming the state and the legislature with such persistence that it will require the official count to at least get one or the other to concede defeat. Incomplete returns indicate the election of the Republican state ticket by from 10,000 to 12,000, but the result on the legislature is so close that no definite figures can be given on it. The Democrats confidently claim a majority in both branches of the legislature, but give no figures on the number of state senators or representatives. The Republicans claim 54 representatives and 17 senators sure, or 71 votes on joint ballot, 73 being necessary to elect a senator. They also claim all of the twelve representatives whose counties have not been definitely heard from, and all of which are in the doubtful list. Out of the five state senators yet to hear from they claim three, so that the result on the legislature cannot be determined until all the doubtful counties and districts are heard from. Both sides are watching the count very carefully, especially on the legislative candidates that are in doubt.

IN IOWA.

Returns Indicate the Election of the Republican Ticket.

Des Moines, Nov. 4.—Returns from about one-fourth of the 2,005 precincts of the state show that the Republican plurality will be about 17,000. These returns are from all parts of the state, including both city and country precincts, and it is believed that the ratio established thereby will be substantially maintained. The ratio of Democratic gain has been at about 23 per cent to a precinct for nearly 500 precincts. That will give the Democrats a net gain in the state of about 47,000. The legislative ticket returns are slow in coming in. The best estimates obtainable here give to the senate 36 Republicans, 12 Democrats and two districts in doubt. Of the members of the house, probably 65 out of 100 will be Republican, giving them a safe working majority.

IN NEBRASKA.

Fusion Candidates Elected by Safe Majorities.

Lincoln, Nov. 4.—Nebraska has renewed her allegiance to fusion by electing the three candidates on that ticket by pluralities ranging from ten to twenty-five thousand. Nothing like complete returns have been received, but enough are in to measure the result and indicate a greater fusion victory than in presidential year. The State Journal, on returns from 70 precincts outside Lincoln and Omaha, concedes the defeat of the Republican ticket.

Massachusetts Goes Republican.

Boston, Nov. 4.—Returns from all but three of the thirty-three cities and 305 towns indicate a Republican plurality of about 88,000. The total vote for Wolcott, the Republican candidate, will be about 165,000; for Williams, Democrat, 78,000; and Everett about 12,000. The legislature remains practically unchanged.

Clean Sweep for Democrats.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4.—Returns do not indicate the election of a single Republican or Populist to the legislature. Democratic state ticket elected by a large majority, but small vote. In the last legislature the Republicans and Populists had a combined representation of 38 out of 140.

Kansas Is Slow.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 4.—Practically no figures are to be had to show the result of the elections. Both the Republicans and the fusionists are claiming to have elected a majority of the thirteen district judges voted for, but their claims are indefinite.

In Maryland.

Baltimore, Nov. 4.—Returns from the state are meager and unofficial in character. Nothing but estimates have been received, but these indicate that the Democrats may have a majority on joint ballot in the assembly which will insure the re-election of Senator German.

Results in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4.—A special to be received at state Democratic headquarters from 74 precincts in the state for clerk of the court of appeals are as follows: Bailey (Rep.), 7,134; Shackelford (Dem.), 6,622; Hindman (Nat. Dem.), 468.</

The Tennessee baby born with whiskers may be the happy omen of more big crops in the United States and more shortages in Europe.

Utah has thirty good sized towns in which no newspapers are published. Several of these are county seats. Utah is growing in wealth faster than any state in the Union, but needs more newspapers.

The fortieth anniversary of the Fulton street daily prayer meeting was recently celebrated in New York. This meeting, which is held every noon in a crowded business section of the city, was established at a time of great business anxiety, after the panic of 1857, and has been held regularly since that time. An interesting feature of the celebration was the presentation of a portrait of the founder of the meeting, Jeremiah C. Lamphier, who is now 88 years old.

An English admiral declares that if the gun-ship cannot be modified to meet and balance the threat of the torpedo vessel, then the torpedo vessel will itself become the battleship of the future, and the gun-ship will fall into the auxiliary or subordinate place. He argues that there would be less risk in men and money in sending a flotilla of swift but small vessels against a battleship than to meet that formidable engine of war with a ship of equal size. The future of naval warfare may abound in such developments.

An import movement of gold began late in September with the arrival of $4,000,000 at San Francisco, from Australia, and the engagement of $2,500,000 at London and Paris. These are the first imports of importance since last November. They are a natural result of the movement of the crops. The active shipment of grain and cotton calls for increased supplies of money at the centers of agricultural production, and the deficiency caused by meeting this demand is supplied by gold, paid by the foreign purchasers of our products. The condition favors a continuance of gold imports, as we are now selling to Europe monthly from forty to fifty million dollars' worth of our products in excess of all that we are buying there. In reality we ought to get $50,000,000 imports a month. The monthly interest on our foreign debts abroad, however, amounts to $40,000,000 a month.

The abuse of the right of petition consists, in part, of an indiscriminate use of that method of reaching a desired end. It is a truism that the obtaining of signatures for a petition is usually an easy matter. Men sign out of good nature, to get rid of importunity, because they have signed similar documents, and so on, and sometimes the body of the petition is not even read. An excellent illustration of recklessness was recently furnished. A citizen complained to the governor of a state because a certain criminal had been pardoned. The governor sent for the papers in the case, and the complainant was found to have signed the petition for a pardon. He had put his name to the paper without reflection, and had forgotten the fact. But when his own request had been granted, he indignantly held the governor guilty of an act injurious to the public interest.

An important decision relating to the power of removal from office has been given by Judge Cox of the supreme court of the District of Columbia. The case was that of John G. Wood, superintendent of mails at Louisville, Ky., who applied to the court to enjoin the postmaster-general from removing him. His claim was that his superior had no right to depose him without giving reasons, because of the civil service rule recently promulgated by the president, forbidding removals from the classified service except for just cause and upon written charges. Judge Cox dismissed the complaint. He held that the power of removal is an incident to the power of appointment, and that both are lodged with the heads of departments. There can be no restrictions upon the power of removal except by legislation, and any rules touching the matter, whether made by the president or civil service commission, are void. The enforcement of such rules is a matter that lies between the president and his cabinet. In a similar case in the federal court at Chicago Judge Jenkins has given a similar decision. Under these interpretations of the law there is no legal remedy for the violation of the rule recently made, and the enforcement of that rule must depend solely on the executive.

After eighteen weeks of negotiation, terms of peace between Turkey and Greece were arranged by the representatives of the powers at Constantinople, and a preliminary treaty was signed Sept. 18th, and was soon after ratified by the sultan. Turkey secures a change of frontier which gives her better control of the mountain passes, and she is to receive an indemnity of four million pounds. Greece assigns certain revenues, which are to be administered by the powers, for the benefit of the old bondholders as well as the takers of the new indemnity loan.

SWEPT BY TAMMANY

VAN WYCK ELECTED MAYOR OF GREATER NEW YORK.

The First Mayor of the Gigantic Municipality Gets a Plurality of Over 80,000—Low Leads Tracy by a Small Margin—The Vote for Young George is Insignificant—The Legislative Branch of the City Government is Tammany-Democrat.

New York, Nov. 4.—Tammany's victory in the first municipal election in Greater New York is a sweeping one. The only question remaining to be settled is the one of plurality by which the entire ticket headed by Robert A. Van Wyck has carried the gigantic municipality.

The estimated vote for mayor is as follows: Van Wyck, 235,181; Low, 149,873; Tracy, 101,823; George, 20,386; Van Wyck's plurality, over Low, 85,308.

On the city ticket with Judge Van Wyck-Bird S. Coler is elected controller and Randolph Guggenheimer president of the municipal council. Charles F. Fairchild, who was secretary of the treasury during Cleveland's first administration, and whom the citizen's union put up for controller, did not hold the pace with Mr. Low.

Ashbel Fitch, originally a Republican, and afterward a Democratic member of congress from a Tammany district of this city, was the Republican nominee for controller. He is defeated by about the same vote as the head of the ticket. Coler, the successful candidate is new to the public. Charles W. Dayton, late postmaster, was nominated for controller on the George ticket, and polled probably half as many votes again as were given Mr. George.

The legislative branch of the city government is Tammany-Democrat. It is a double headed body, one branch being the municipal council, consisting of the president and twenty-eight members, and the other the board of aldermen, comprising sixty members. The precise number of Democrats chosen cannot be stated at the present writing. There appears to be a strong probability that the Democrats have won a majority of the county and borough offices along with the municipal places.

At night the whole city was alive to the occasion. Bulletin boards, searchlights, newspaper extras, readers on the streets, all testified to the fact that the story of the election, the jubilant huzzas, the discordant fish horns for the expression of their joy, while the saloons, closed during the hours while the voting was in progress, did business on a scale to compensate for the period of enforced thirst, were noisy and brilliantly illuminated. The enthusiasm in the vicinity of Tammany Hall was particularly great.

IN NEW YORK STATE.

Democrats Elect the Judge—The Assembly in Doubt.
New York, Nov. 4.—Rain, which prevailed generally all over the state, had the effect of keeping a great many of the country voters home. The result is apparent in the reduced majorities given in concededly Republican districts to William J. Wallace, the Republican nominee for chief judge of the court of appeals, as compared with the pluralities by which the same districts were carried last year. Conceding to Judge Parker (Dem.) a majority of 100,000 in Greater New York, it is probable that he has won in the state.

The indications are that the Democrats have a small majority in the state assembly. In the last assembly the republicans had a majority of 78. Conceding all that is claimed by the Democrats, the next house will have 10 Democratic majority. State senators were not elected this year. Other estimates give a Republican majority in the assembly of 3.

South Dakota Returns.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 4.—Indications are that the Republicans have won in South Dakota. Smith, Rep., is elected judge in the First district by a close vote. In the second, Jones, Rep., is probably elected by 400 majority, overcoming an adverse majority in 1896 of 1,050. Smith, Rep., in the Fourth district, is elected. The election of Campbell, Rep., in the Fifth district, is claimed by 1,200 majority. Gaffey, Rep., is certainly elected in the Sixth.

The result in the Third district is in doubt. The Populists have probably carried one district, the Eighth, and Wilson, Rep., is leading in the Seventh.

Interest at the Capital.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Great interest was displayed by the citizens of the capital in the result of the elections throughout the country. Early in the evening large crowds congregated in front of the newspaper bulletin boards and at various private places where the returns were displayed. In official circles the interest was intense, and many inquiries were made as to the results, particularly in Ohio and Maryland.

Both Sides Claim Colorado.

Denver, Nov. 4.—Returns from the state are very meager. There is no chance to compare the vote with that of last year as this was fusion between Silver Republicans and Democrats against Populists, while now here the Republican administration and Silver Republicans are joined against a combination of the Democrats and Populists. Both sides claim victory, but neither claim over 5,000 majority.

Cecil Rhodes' Health Causes Alarm.

London, Nov. 4.—The gravest rumors were in circulation on the stock exchange respecting the health of Cecil Rhodes, the South African magnate, former premier of Cape Colony and director of the British Chartered South African company.

Insurgents Are Active.

Simla, Nov. 4.—The insurgent tribesmen in Malen valley were very active all day. They made fierce attacks on the British pickets, reconnoitering parties and transports.

KNOWLEDGE NOT PROPERTY.

A Case Where a Man Must Give "Expert Testimony."

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 4.—A decision which has just been rendered by the supreme court in the case of Dixon vs. the people is of great interest to professional men who are called upon to give expert testimony. In the circuit court of Sangamon county, Dr. J. N. Dixon of this city, who was called as an expert witness in a personal injury case against the city of Springfield, refused to testify unless he was first paid a reasonable fee for his services, claiming that his professional opinion was his own property and could not be taken away from him except by due process of law, as provided in the state constitution. Judge Creighton ruled against him and fined him for contempt of court. The court held that this professional knowledge was not property within the meaning of the constitution, and that in the exercise of the right of the court to summon witnesses and compel them to testify no distinction could be made between kinds of knowledge. To make such distinction would defeat the ends of justice. The finding of Judge Creighton was upheld by the supreme court.

ARGENTINA WHEAT.

The Crop Will Be Heavy and Quite Sufficient for Local Demand.

New York, Nov. 4.—A dispatch to the Herald from Buenos Ayres says: The prospects for crops in Argentina are splendid, and there is every indication that the yield of wheat will be very large. In view of this fact no North American wheat is being purchased here. That which is being delivered was bought before it became known that the wheat crop here would be so large.

A CLEAN SWEEP.

Robbers Carry Off All Value in the Forest City Postoffice.

Forest City, Iowa, Nov. 4.—The postoffice at this place was entered by burglars and both its safes were blown open. The robbers took all the stamps, registered mail matter and a considerable sum of money. The robbers left evidences of other robberies in the shape of bank drafts, etc., useless to them. The job was a neat one and could have been done by none other than experts. They left no clue.

FEVER SITUATION IMPROVING.

If the Present Weather Continues It Will Be Stamped Out in a Few Days.

New Orleans, Nov. 4.—The fever situation is very encouraging. Board of health physicians say the backbone of the fever is broken, and should the weather remain as it is for several days the disease will become non-infectious and almost entirely stamped out. There have been thirty new cases and five deaths during the day.

Driving Indians Out.

Lay, Colo., Nov. 4.—Sheriff Nieman has gone to the Indian camp where Deputy Game Warden Wilcox had his fight, and which has been deserted by the Indians. The sheriff says he will drive the Indians out of the state. Settlers from the lower Bear and Snake river valleys are still waiting here. No white men have yet been killed by the Indians, but they say they would ambush the whites if they followed them to the Blue mountains.

Pays $1,000 for His Cruel Joke.

Port Dodge, Iowa, Nov. 4.—Judgment has been rendered against Thomas Reedy for $1,000 for playing a practical joke on Ralph Reynolds in 1895, wherein a supposed ghost chased the latter when he went to look at what he believed were the mangled remains of a man run over by the cars. Reynolds made an incurably insane by the fright. Part of the jury wanted to assess Reedy $7,000.

Will Attend the Conference.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 4.—Sir Wilfred Laurier and Sir Louis D'Amour will leave on Monday next for Washington to attend the conference between Great Britain and the United States experts regarding seal life in Bering sea. J. N. Macdon, the Canadian expert, and R. N. Vennart, chief clerk of the fisheries department, will accompany the ministers.

Historic House Destroyed.

Nyack, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The 1776 stone house at Tappan was blown down by the wind. This is the house where Maj. John Andre was imprisoned, from which he was taken to his execution on Oct. 2, 1780. It was owned by Dr. Stephens of Tappan and has been visited by people from all over the world.

Fertile Murder Trial.

Menomonic, Wis., Nov. 3.—The trial of John W. Fertig, for the murder of Robert C. Spaulding, was called in the circuit court here, Judge W. F. Bailey of Eau Claire on the bench. A special venire for fifty extra jurors was issued by the court. When court adjourned at night not a juror had been accepted.

Pills Killed Him.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 4.—James H. Jordan, postmaster of Denver, died from an overdose of morphine pills which he had taken supposing them to be cathartics.

Farmer's Mishap.

Hastings, Minn., Nov. 4.—J. W. Walter, a farmer from Belvidere, Wis., was thrown from his wagon, breaking his right leg and receiving other injuries.

New Job for Eckles.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—The Chronicle says James H. Eckles, controller of the currency, has been elected president of the Commercial National Bank of Chicago.

Two Years Penal Servitude.

Copenhagen, Nov. 4.—Cashier Shifverberg of the local branch of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, who was arrested on Sept. 28, charged with embezzling 44,000 crowns and with falsifying his accounts, was sentenced to two years' penal servitude.

Vessel Ashore at Cannon.

London, Nov. 4.—The Norwegian bark White Rose, Capt. Aaroe, from Tacoma for Greenock, is ashore at Cannon.

OHIO IS DOUBTFUL.

MAY REQUIRE THE OFFICIAL COUNT TO DETERMINE THE RESULT.

Republicans and Democrats Are Both Claiming the State and the Legislature—Iowa Elects the Republican Ticket by a Safe Majority—Massachusetts Also Goes Republican—Results of Elections in Other States.

Columbus, Nov. 4.—The result in Ohio is so close that it may require the official count to determine the result, especially on the political complexion of the legislature. The Republicans and Democrats are both claiming the state and the legislature with such persistence that it will require the official count to at least get one or the other to concede defeat. Incomplete returns indicate the election of the Republican state ticket by from 10,000 to 12,000, but the result on the legislature is so close that no definite figures can be given on it. The Democrats confidently claim a majority in both branches of the legislature, but give no figures on the number of state senators or representatives. The Republicans claim 54 representatives and 17 senators sure, or 71 votes on joint ballot, 73 being necessary to elect a senator. They also claim all of the twelve representatives whose counties have not been definitely heard from, and all of which are in the doubtful list. Out of the five state senators yet to hear from they claim three, so that the result on the legislature cannot be determined until all the doubtful counties and districts are heard from. Both sides are watching the count very carefully, especially on the legislative candidates that are in doubt.

IN IOWA.

Returns Indicate the Election of the Republican Ticket.
Des Moines, Nov. 4.—Returns from about one-fourth of the 2,005 precincts of the state show that the Republican plurality will be about 17,000. These returns are from all parts of the state, including both city and country precincts, and it is believed that the ratio established thereby will be substantially maintained. The ratio of Democratic gain has been at about 23 per cent to a precinct for nearly 500 precincts. That will give the Democrats a net gain in the state of about 47,000. The legislative ticket returns are slow in coming in. The best estimates obtainable here give to the senate 36 Republicans, 12 Democrats and two districts in doubt. Of the members of the house, probably 65 out of 100 will be Republican, giving them a safe working majority.

IN NEBRASKA.

Fusion Candidates Elected by Safe Majorities.
Lincoln, Nov. 4.—Nebraska has renewed her allegiance to fusion by electing the three candidates on that ticket by pluralities ranging from ten to twenty-five thousand. Nothing like complete returns have been received, but enough are in to measure the result and indicate a greater fusion victory than in presidential year. The State Journal, on returns from 70 precincts outside Lincoln and Omaha, concedes the defeat of the Republican ticket.

Massachusetts Goes Republican.

Boston, Nov. 4.—Returns from all but three of the thirty-three cities and 305 towns indicate a Republican plurality of about 88,000. The total vote for Wolcott, the Republican candidate, will be about 166,000; for Williams, Democrat, 78,000; and Everett about 12,000. The legislature remains practically unchanged.

Clean Sweep for Democrats.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4.—Returns do not indicate the election of a single Republican or Populist to the legislature. Democratic state ticket elected by a large majority, but small vote. In the last legislature the Republicans and Populists had a combined representation of 38 out of 110.

Kansas Is Slow.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 4.—Practically no figures are to be had to show the result of the elections. Both the Republicans and the fusionists are claiming to have elected a majority of the thirteen district judges voted for, but their claims are indefinite.

In Maryland.

Baltimore, Nov. 4.—Returns from the state are meager and unofficial in character. Nothing but estimates have been received, but these indicate that the Democrats may have a majority on joint ballot in the assembly which will insure the re-election of Senator Gorman.

Results in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4.—A special to arrived at state Democratic headquarters from 74 precincts in the state for clerk of the court of appeals are as follows: Bailey (Rep.), 7,134; Shackelford (Dem.), 6,622; Hindman (Nat. Dem.), 468.

Collapse of a Scaffold.

St. Louis, Nov. 4.—While sixty-five men were on a large scaffold extending the whole length of the Wabash building, which was recently partly destroyed by fire, a section of the platform gave way, falling to the floor

NORTHWEST NEWS

MURDERED FOR MONEY.

A Miser Whose Money Brought Bat Torture and Death.
Ames, Iowa, Special.—A local paper states that Ole Olson, who lived near Conroy, is the victim of an atrocious crime, committed a few nights ago. He is known to have been a miser and worth $30,000, and lived in a miserable hovel in a field on one of his farms. One of his two sons, who lives on a farm near him, went to his shack and found him unconscious. He died a few hours later. The post mortem revealed that he had been struck back of the ear. There is yet no clue. Three years ago he was bound and tortured to extract money from him, and after that he deposited over $12,000 in the banks.

Doesn't He Read the Papers?

Sioux City, Iowa, Special.—By the death of his father at Ishpeming, Mich., W. J. Truran, formerly a waiter in a restaurant in this city, has fallen heir to an estate of $30,000. Most men would not wait long to claim such a property, but Truran apparently does not care for it. His father's lawyer has written to the authorities all over this part of the country to look for the young man. Thus far their search has been unavailing. So thoroughly has the matter been advertised that it seems impossible for him to have overlooked it. He left Sioux City several weeks ago, and is supposed to be working somewhere in the vicinity of Sheldon or Cherokee.

New Ore Railway.

Livingston, Mont., Special.—Work has been resumed on the Gaylord & Ruilein Valley railroad, and it is expected that it will be finished by Jan. 1. This road extends from Whitehall to Twin Bridges, twenty-five miles, and when complete will be used largely for hauling ore to the smelters at Twin Bridges. This road was graded and made ready for the iron in '95, but the closing down of the smelters caused the company to stop construction.

Too Bad He Got Away.

Mitchell, S. D., Special.—Ora Almsted, aged thirteen years, narrowly escaped a criminal assault by a fellow whose name could not be learned. The affair occurred two miles west of town as the girl was going home from school. The girl's screams attracted the attention of a farmer plowing in a field near by, and he ran to the rescue. A crowd of 100 men started out in search of him but could not find him.

Peculiar Death of a Butte Man.

Butte, Mont., Special.—M. R. Burry, a saloon man, met with a peculiar death. While under the influence of liquor he walked out of his bed room window and fell upon wires used as guys to a smokestack. The wires caught him under the arms, and, suspended in mid air, he died before he was discovered.

Five Years in Prison.

Helena, Mont., Special.—B. D. Hatcher, who was under indictment for the misappropriation of funds of the Northwestern National Bank of Great Falls while cashier, went before Judge Hiram Knowles, in the United States court, and pleaded guilty to one count. The court gave him the minimum sentence—five years.

Fargo Argus Changes Hands.

Fargo, N. D., Special.—Col. W. H. Robinson has sold the Argus to the Record Publishing company, which will take possession at once. The transaction is for cash, and the name will probably be the Argus-Record. Col. Lounsbury will have editorial control.

Costly Prairie Fire.

Aberdeen, S. D., Special.—A prairie fire in this county, a few miles west of here, burned over 500 tons of hay for various farmers and stockmen. In New Hope township grain stacks belonging to J. W. Adams and farm buildings belonging to Mrs. Hewitt were destroyed.

Black Leg in South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Special.—A dispatch from Mitchell says that black leg has appeared among the cattle on the farm of John Gatz, who lives a few miles north of town. Mr. Gatz has lost four cattle and some forty more are infected.

Collision in Montana.

Glasgow, Mont., Special.—Three miles east of Hinsdale, on this division of the Great Northern, a double-header hauling sixty empty cars telescoped into a stock train running east. Two men are dead as a result of the accident and several are seriously injured.

Forgery Is Charged.

New Umn, Minn., Special.—Warrants have been received here for the arrest of R. D. Chase, who has been selling nursery stock and groceries throughout neighboring counties. The warrants charge Chase with forgery.

Fell on a Circular Saw.

Butte, Mont., Special.—William Goss, a young man employed in the Original mine, met a horrible death by the slipping of a circular saw which he was handling. It caught Goss on the right side and almost severed the body.

Fell 200 Feet.

Butte, Mont., Special.—Dennis Cronin, a miner employed in the Diamond mine, fell 220 feet down the shaft and was instantly killed.

Missoula, Mont., Special.—Pardee, a mining camp in the western part of Missoula county, was nearly destroyed by fire. Two boarding houses, two stores and several dwellings were consumed. A few log cabins were saved.

Fire at McKinley.

McKinley, Minn., Special.—E. Peterson's dwelling house caught fire and burned to the ground. Two adjoining buildings owned by Tom Thompson, of this place, and Theodore Johnson, of Tower, also burned. Loss, $2,500; no insurance.

Fatal Burning.

Argyle, Minn., Special.—Miss Anna Olson of Middle River dropped a lighted lamp, breaking it. Her clothing caught fire and she was so badly burned that she died.

ARMY OF THE TENNESSEE.

Old Officers Re-Elected—Next Meeting at Toledo.

Milwaukee, Special.—With the selection of Toledo as the next place for holding the next meeting and the reelection of all the old officers the 20th annual meeting of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee came to a close. Omaha was in the field for the next reunion and held forth as an attraction for the veterans the trans-Mississippi exposition. The members, however, did not take kindly to the proposition, and the Ohio town won out. Chief among the pleasing incidents of the day was the reading of the account of the celebration of the eightieth birthday of Mother Bickerdike at Bunker Hill, Kan., who was head nurse of the Army of the Tennessee. The members of the society were warm in their commendation of the special efforts of the committees in charge of the entertainment during the reunion.

VICKSBURG PARK.

The Army of the Tennessee Still Favors It.

Milwaukee, Special.—The twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Army of the Tennessee is in session here. Over 200 members are in attendance. Secretary Hickenlooper of Cincinnati made his annual report, showing a loss by death in membership in the society of eleven. The report of Gen. F. M. Force, treasurer of the society, gave the amount of money in possession of the society as $9,500 in United States bonds and $1,059.84 in cash. The following resolution was passed:

Resolved, That the Society of the Army of the Tennessee reaffirms and emphasizes its indorsement of the bill now pending in congress to establish a national military park to commemorate the campaign, siege and defense of Vicksburg.

IN A WINE ROOM.

Runaway Girl From Minnesota Found by Her Father.

Galesville, Wis., Special.—Mary Kloff, the fifteen-year-old girl who eloped with William Thorne from St. Peter, Minn., was located in a wine room in this city. The father, accompanied by the sheriff, found the girl alone. Thorne having fled to escape arrest. The girl protested that she wanted to stay with Thorne, but the father refused to allow the marriage and took her home.

Runaway Accident.

Black River Falls, Wis., Special.—Frank and Pat Melvin, two brothers living at Trout, about eight miles from this city, started for this place with a four-horse team and a large load of grain. Coming down a steep grade the merrymaking broke, frightening the horses, and they ran away, throwing the boys off the load. Frank had his jaw bone broken and was badly injured. Pat's arm was badly fractured in two places, and he was hurt internally.

Heavy Out Yield.

Black River Falls, Wis., Special.—One of the farmers of this county recently threshed out over 7,000 bushels of oats from 135 acres, which is considered a very good yield this year, as the yield on an average throughout the county has fallen very much below that amount, and also very much below what had been estimated by the farmers generally. Buckwheat, sorghum and corn have all been remarkably good crops all over this section.

Will Not Go Alone.

La Crosse, Wis., Special.—Hon. William B. Finch, recently appointed envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Paraguay and Uruguay, and editor and proprietor of the Republican and Leader, was married to Miss Lillian Law, daughter of the late ex-Mayor David Law. They will leave at once for Montevideo, South America, going via Europe and Africa.

Sixty Days for a Joke.

Oshkosh, Wis., Special.—August Bergman, an Appleton man, reported that he had been held up and robbed of $315 by three highwaymen just outside the city limits. He admitted he had told the story just for fun, but the judge turned the joke by giving him sixty days in the workhouse.

Run Over at Hudson.

Hudson, Wis., Special.—Patrick Burke of St. Paul, about twenty-three years of age, was run over by the Chicago limited train and both feet badly crushed. He may die.—Frank Ryan pleaded guilty to grand larceny and was sentenced to Waupun for eighteen months.

Bad Runaway Accident.

Black River Falls, Wis., Special.—The driving team of D. J. Spaulding became frightened and ran away, crashing into the carriage of Rufus Jones, throwing the horse down and overturning the buggy, breaking Mr. Jones' leg and injuring him badly about the head.

Wood Wants $25,000.

West Superior, Wis., Special.—A suit for $25,000 damages has been filed against the Duluth, Superior & Western railway by Thomas Wood. Wood was injured last spring on the ore dock here, being struck by the handle of a windlass and internally injured.

West Superior, Wis., Special.—Albert Anderson, a thirteen-year-old boy living on John avenue, ran away from school. He was scheduled for a reprimand by his school teacher and chose to run away, going toward St. Paul on a freight train. The police are trying to locate the youngster.

The Oshkosh Electric railroad will expend $10,000 in the erection of a summer garden and casino two miles north of that city.

BLEW OFF HIS HEAD.

A Wealthy Saloonkeeper of Wadena Shoots Himself, Dying Instantly.

Wadena, Minn., Special.—A sensation was created by the finding of the body of Matt Siefert near the crossing of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific in this city. One side of the dead man's head had been blown off with a shotgun. It is probably a case of suicide. He had been acting strangely of late, and worried greatly over the most trivial affairs. He was a well known saloonkeeper.

KILLED IN A FIGHT.

Deputy Game Warden and Three Indians Are Dead.

Leech Lake Reservation, Special.—Information by special messenger has just reached this reservation that a fight occurred between two Indians and a game warden, in which all were killed, including one Indian woman. A deputy game warden, whose name cannot be ascertained, arrived at an Indian camp on an island in a lake between Bemidji and the Cass Lake reservation, and seized two guns and a trapping outfit belonging to Kak-Kak-Quash and Mahicannagah, two Indians who belong to the Cass Lake reservation, and also made an attempt to seize some furs which they had, but they resisted this, whereupon the warden clubbed the older Indian with a gun until he became unconscious, and then shot him. He then shot the other Indian and his wife, mortally wounding both. In the meantime, the older Indian, having recovered consciousness, shot and killed the warden. Dr. E. S. Hart, overseer in charge of this subagency, has been investigating the matter and has decided to send Martin Branchaud and a detail of Indian police to the scene of the affray to investigate the matter thoroughly. No detailed account of the fight can be had, as the only information yet received was brought in by an Indian boy 12 or 14 years of age, who witnessed the shooting.

Considerable excitement exists here among the Indians, and Dr. Hart is unwilling to express an opinion regarding the effect it may have upon them. The Indians consider the interference of their hunting privileges by game wardens as a violation of their treaty rights.

Cavalry to the Rescue.

Salt Lake, Utah, Special.—A report to the Tribune from Fort Duchesne, Utah, says reports from the scene of the killing of the Indians by the game wardens are meager. Capt. Wright has left in pursuance of orders from department headquarters with his entire troop for the scene of the difficulty to protect the settlers and drive the Indians to the reservation.

Whites Also Killed.

Denver, Special.—Col. Otis has received a telegram from the vicinity of the trouble between the Indians and game wardens in which it was stated that white men as well as Indians were killed in the fight. A telegram from Fort Duchesne says over 300 Indians, men, women and children, are off the reservation.

BULLETS AT SHORT RANGE.

Exchange of Shots by Gambler and Theater Manager.

Spokane, Wash., Special.—As the result of a sensational shooting affray in front of the Coeur d'Alene theater, Johnny Bull, an old time gambler, was shot three times and probably fatally wounded. "Frisky" (H. S.) Barnett, manager of the theater, had a finger shot off and his face filled with burnt powder, while his wife, better known by the stage name of Ida Clayton, received a bullet through the shoulder. The shooting is said to have been the result of a deliberate attempt on the part of Bull to assassinate Barnett, because the latter, in a row two hours before, had hit Bull on the head with a cane.

Judge Takes a Hand.

Denver, Special.—Judge Allen of the criminal court, has ordered the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty against Mrs. Amanda Steele, James McVeigh and William Rogers, charged with forgery and conspiracy in connection with the spring election frauds. There remain eighteen indictments for neglect of duty against election officers, but as this is only a misdemeanor under the statutes, they will not receive severe sentences if convicted.

FOOD ENOUGH.

Minister Sifton Doubts If There Is Any Danger of Drought.

Vancouver, B. C., Special.—Minister of the Interior Sifton, who has been investigating the different routes into the Yukon, has arrived here from Dyea. Mr. Sifton is of the opinion that the Chilkoot pass is a better one than the White pass. Regarding reports of starvation at Dawson City, Mr. Sifton stated that his latest advice were to the effect that there would be enough provisions to last until spring.

MINNESOTA NEWS

LEAPED TO DEATH.

An Appalling Double Tragedy at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Special.—An appalling double tragedy took place on the Smith avenue bridge Saturday afternoon, when Jacob Amos, a cigarmaker, and Henry Borgenkreuger, also a cigarmaker, hurled themselves, one after the other, from the highest span of the bridge to the river below, a distance of over 200 feet. The desperate acts were witnessed by a number of people on the bridge and in the vicinity, and appeared to have been deliberate and planned, but no one was near enough to the suicides to intercept them. Both bodies shot into space with the rapidity of lightning, each man jumping far out from the bridge and whirling over and over with quickening momentum gathered in the fall. Each struck the water with a sickening splash within a few seconds, and before the spectators realized what had happened two lives had been hurled into eternity under most tragic circumstances.

Following the leaps to death the scene of the suicides was one of intense excitement. The tremendous jump, the evident cool purpose and desperate determination, together with the rash, yet calm execution of what was doubtless an agreement between the men to seek death together, horrified the witnesses. Men ran to the spot where the suicides had plunged to the water and women grew faint with dread. But all were helpless to render any assistance after the fearful leap.

The cause of the deeds of self destruction is largely speculative, but there is evidence to show that both men had been drinking, and the general version is that they bantered each other into jumping from the bridge while irresponsible from the effects of liquor. A strict search for the bodies was prosecuted by men in boats, but up to a late hour they had not been recovered.

MEETING OF WOMEN.

Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs Meets at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Special.—The Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs has begun a three-day session in the Park Congregational church, on Holly avenue and Mackubin street. The session was opened with prayer by Mrs. J. P. Adamson of Merriam Park, after which Mrs. A. W. French, corresponding secretary of the federation, presented her annual report. Mrs. E. G. Butts, the treasurer, reported receipts amounting to $247.10 and expenditures amounting to $116.12, leaving a balance on hand of $131.28. Short papers were read by Mrs. W. B. Fowler, chairman of the committee on Town and Country clubs; Mrs. Anna L. Theodolp, chairman of the committee on reciprocity, and Mrs. A. P. Ingalls on "Club Journeys." In the evening a reception was tendered the ladies by the Commercial club.

LOOKING UP THE MURDER.

Definite Information as to the Killing of a Warden Yet Lacking.

Fosston, Minn., Special.—Coroner Achenbach left for Genat Lake, twenty-five miles northeast of here, to investigate the alleged killing of Indians and Game Warden Wetzel. Wetzel is reported killed, but settlers at Turtle Lake have been out for two days looking for his body but cannot find it. He has been trying to break up moose hunting by the Indians off the reservation, and the report is that he found three Indians and a squaw with a couple of moose carcasses and attempted to take their game from them. In the melee he shot the squaw, when the bucks at once began firing at him. The result is said to have been the death of Wetzel and one Indian and the wounding of two more.

Probably Held Up.

Bemidji, Minn., Special.—Last Tuesday there came into town an unassuming fellow with spectacles, who registered at the Central house as L. J. Reynolds. He took a position on the Great Northern surveying corps, and on Wednesday morning started out on foot with a gun and satchel to go to camp, four miles out. His satchel was found in the woods near here, cut open and partially rifled of its contents. It is not known whether he reached the surveying camp, and it is thought he was held up for the money he had, which amounted to about $100.

S. E. Minnesota Educators.

Winona, Minn., Special.—The second meeting of the Southeastern Minnesota Educational association will be held at the normal school building in this city on Nov. 12 and 13. Among those who will take part in the discussions are State Superintendent Pendergast, Prof. O'Shea, of the University of Wisconsin; Messrs. Shepard of Winona, Tibbitts of St. Charles, Howard of Olmsted county, Spear of Chicago, Mrs. Cooley of Minneapolis and Miss Sprague of Winona.

Vigilants Organize.

Faribault, Minn., Special.—During the past several weeks several hold-ups have occurred in Faribault. The citizens have become aroused. The guilty parties have not as yet been captured. A vigilant committee has been organized, with some of the city as members, and proposes to rid the city of this evil and will deal vigorously with the guilty ones.

Unknown Man Killed.

St. Paul, Special.—An unknown man was killed by a Great Northern passenger train under the Rice street bridge. There were no papers on his body to indicate his name or residence, and it is supposed that he was a woodsman on his way to the pines.

Burglars at Alden.

Alden, Minn., Special.—Burglars broke into Svendsen, Hansen & Co.'s store and stole several suits of clothes and some jewelry. There is no clue to the robbers.

PUNISHMENT FITS THE CRIME.

Supreme Court Sustains the Bergstrom Sentence.

St. Paul, Special.—There are twelve long months of woe ahead for Peter J. Bergstrom, the former register of deeds of St. Louis county. Bergstrom was convicted in the St. Louis county court last spring of appropriating fees to his own use, and he was fined $500 and sentenced to state prison for one year. He appealed to the supreme court, alleging error in the trial record and emphasizing the point that the punishment was disproportionate to the offense, and, therefore, against the constitution. The supreme court has just rendered a decision affirming the order of the trial court on every point.

CURE FOR PLAGUE.

Another Remedy Found. This Time at Albert Lea.

Albert Lea, Minn., Special.—Dr. L. J. Thomas, an old veterinary practitioner here, thinks he has discovered a cure for the swine plague. He has treated a large number of animals sick with the disease and says none of those taking his medicine have died and it works equally as well as a preventive. The curative is inexpensive and consists of a liquid application of bituminous coal, the coal thus treated being fed to the hogs. Dr. Thomas says he has treated a herd of sixty that had the disease and as yet none of them have died.

TONS PER ACRE, 37.

Tremendous Yield of Sugar Beets in Freeborn County.

Albert Lea, Minn., Special.—As high as thirty-seven tons of sugar beets were raised upon an acre of land this season in this county. Many beets are being fed to cows, the result being an immediate increase in the flow of milk.

The Albert Lea Cracker and Candy company expects to enlarge its business next year, and will put up a new three-story brick. The building will be 4x132 feet, and from 75 to 100 hands will be employed.

LITTLE ONES BURNED.

Parents at Lake Minto See Their Babies Consumed.

Alexandria, Minn., Special.—The dwelling of John Kuhne, in Milotia, burned. Nothing was saved. Two children, one a baby, and the other a little older, were burned to death in sight of their parents, who returned to the house in time to see their babies consumed, while powerless to prevent.

SHOCKED THE GAMBLERS.

City Attorney Peterson of Moorhead Has Tackled a Big Job.

Moorhead, Minn., Special.—Five gambling houses were raided and eight tables and a quantity of chips and other paraphernalia were captured. L. A. Kertson & Co. lost three tables; Thomas Erdel, the same, and Thomas Murphy two. Nothing was found at the John Haas or A. N. Olson places.

Dire Threats of Indians.

Walker, Minn., Special.—A courier, just arrived from Cross Lake, whence came the news of a shooting affray between a warden and Indians, reports that the dispute arose between the game warden and the Indian relative to the latter's hunting. The warden struck the Indian over the head with a club, making him insensible. Another Indian and his wife tried to stop the blow, when the game warden fired on both of them. The old Indian regained consciousness and fired on the game warden, killing him instantly. The Indian woman shot by the warden has since died. She was a niece of Chief White Hair, who, with his followers, claims he will kill every white man found on the reservation. The warden is supposed to have been Frank Bevy, formerly of Itasca county.

Beaten by Badgers.

Minneapolis, Special.—From the beginning to the end the foot ball game between Minnesota and Wisconsin at Athletic park was one long continuous procession. Wisconsin lead from the start and was never headed. Minnesota was beaten because she was utterly outclassed. The pace which Wisconsin set was too hot to follow. After the first ten minutes of play the result could easily be seen. The score was 39 to 0.

Old Newspaper Man Dies.

Minneapolis, Special.—The death of William H. H. Matteson, a well known newspaper man, occurred at his residence in this city, after a prolonged illness. Mr. Matteson was born in 1838 at Panama, N. Y., and entered newspaper work when a boy. At the close of the war he came to Wabasha county, Minn., and settled near Lake City. He, in turn, was identified with the Wabasha Herald and with the Fargo Sun.

Farmer Commits Suicide.

Redwood Falls, Minn., Special.—LeRoy Bryan, aged thirty, committed suicide on the farm of D. S. Cantine, in Johnsonville township, by taking laudanum. Bryan took the laudanum as he was riding from Tracy to the farm, and fell back in the wagon apparently asleep, and when he arrived at the farm was found dead. He had threatened the day before to kill himself by hanging. Despondency was the cause.

Lobbying for a Franchise.

Duluth, Minn., Special.—The representatives of the North American Long Distance Telephone company are in the city, lobbying in the interest of a new franchise ordinance which they hope to get through the council. The proposed line would connect Duluth, St. Paul and the Sault. The offer of the company is said to be very liberal.

Policeman in Trouble.

St. Paul, Special.—Patrolman John P. Walsh has been requested by Mayor Doran to tender his resignation. The charge against the officer is larceny. It is alleged that he took $10 from a man known as Artemus Ward while the latter was in a drunken condition.

Attempted Suicide.

Royalton, Minn., Special.—H. C. Bachelor, a Benton county farmer, took acorn with suicidal intent. Financial troubles were the cause. He will live.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 1, 1897.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1897.

What's the matter with Hanna? He's all right, thank you.

SOUTH DAKOTA has been redeemed from popocrat mis-rule.

If Bryan can get any comfort from Nebraska he's welcome to it.

The election on Tuesday as a whole resulted satisfactorily to republican principles and sound money.

PRESIDENT McKinley has issued a proclamation designating Thursday, Nov. 25th, as Thanksgiving Day.

BUSHNELL's majority in Ohio will be over 26,000, which is as great as last years considering the vote cast.

CHARLEY TOWNE can now come home and look after his own fences here, after helping the republicans carry Ohio.

TAMMANY's triumph in New York is slim comfort to the silverites, as Tammany refused to endorse the Chicago platform.

ONE man a day is the average number of men killed by foot ball throughout the country. It comes high but we've got to have it.

If New Yorker's prefer to be governed by thieves and rogues, it's their concern. The rest of the country can stand it if they can.

The forcing of Hanna onto the republicans of Ohio as senator against their will was a mistake and almost lost the state to the party.

The republicans were uniformly successful on Tuesday where factional fights did not split the party vote, and where a full vote was polled.

The republicans have captured the Maryland legislature and Boss Gorman will have to go to be succeeded by a republican and sound money man.

ONE Kentucky town reports the sale of every weapon in town the day before election. Democratic methods seem to be in vogue again in Kentucky.

GEORGE's adherents in New York endorsed the Chicago platform, and George's vote Tuesday, less than 20,000 out of half a million, is about the number of silverites there.

The Tammany tiger grins and laps his chops with satisfaction. The revenue of the imperial city of Greater New York will be his to loot at pleasure during the next two years. No wonder.

EVERYWHERE Tuesday where the fight was on national issues the republicans held their own, except in Ohio, where a faction of the republicans resented what they considered Hanna's bossism.

EVERY DAY reports come in of some man being shot in the woods by alleged deer hunters, who mistook a man for a deer. There are lots of men going into the woods every day who ought, by law, be prohibited from ever taking a gun in their hands. A few prosecutions for manslaughter would probably have a tendency to reduce the number of fatal mistakes.

CHARLEY TOWNE has been down in Ohio for the past few weeks trying to help Millionaire McLean into the United States Senate, and multi-Millionaire Chapman into the governor's chair. How well he succeeded Tuesday's election discloses, although the free silver papers down there went into raptures over his speeches. Charley certainly has a wonderful gift of gab, and it is a pleasure to hear him talk no matter how erroneous or absurd his theories are. However, he will have his hands full if he tries to be elected to congress from this district next fall, and his millionaire friends McLean and Chapman, of Ohio, ought to come up or put up to help him out.

REMARKS.

The percentage of absence in the various buildings is shown by these figures:

Washington, 3 and 6-100 of  $\frac{1}{2}$  day per pupil.

Whittier, 2 and 60-100 of  $\frac{1}{2}$  day per pupil.

Old 6th street, 1 and 75-100 of  $\frac{1}{2}$  day per pupil.

Lincoln, 1 and 80-100 of  $\frac{1}{2}$  day per pupil.

Lowell, 2 and 49-100 of  $\frac{1}{2}$  day per pupil.

Harrison, 1 and 56-100 of  $\frac{1}{2}$  day per pupil.

Thus it will be seen that the Harrison school stands the highest, that is, it has the lowest fraction of  $\frac{1}{2}$  day per pupil (absence) in the city. The Washington school stands the lowest, that is, it has the highest fraction of  $\frac{1}{2}$  day per pupil (absence) in the city.

The following is a general summary of the standing of each school:—

The Harrison school stands the highest.

The Old 6th street school stands second.

The Lincoln school stands third.

The Lowell school stands fourth.

The Whittier school stands fifth.

The Washington school stands the lowest.

The above standing is in regard to the attendance alone.

Pupils who are irregular, tardy and absent cause nearly all the trouble in the Brainerd schools. Irregular attendance produces inattention, disorder, truancy and discouragement. Pupils also come to school two days and remain away three are forming habits that will hinder them all through life.

Politeness on the streets with the young ladies' and gentlemen, little girls and boys is certainly admirable. Brainerd is not excelled in this respect by any other city in the state.

Composition work is being emphasized throughout all the grades. The power to think and the ability to place the thoughts on paper are the great objects of education. Said composition work will form a large part of the "Exhibit" Saturday, November 6, at the Washington school.

The board of education, parents and all friends of education are invited to attend the Brainerd City Teachers' Association and examine said exhibit. The morning session will commence at 10 o'clock, the afternoon session at 1:30 o'clock.

The use of slang is increasing alarmingly throughout the United States. The teachers of the Brainerd schools will spare no effort to set a good example in language before the children. The use of incorrect verb and pronoun forms is a cause of many mistakes in the speaking of English. Parents are requested to assist the teachers in the work of bringing the speaking of the English language back to its purity to the end that all pupils may lay aside the use of incorrect and rustic language and slang.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

New Homes of Cabinet Members—Some New Social Stars at the Capital. A Desk With a History.

[Special Correspondence.]

The season of social events at the capital is close at hand. In the fashionable portion of the city handsome and hospitable homes are being reopened and prepared for the many brilliant functions at which cabinet officers and other high officials and their families will gather during the winter. Many new faces will be seen in Washington, and several magnificent residences will present a changed appearance after having been remodeled for their new occupants.

Most of the cabinet officers have settled or are about to settle in their homes. Of course Secretary Sherman has lived for several years in his beautiful white carved stone residence on K street, so his home is not new, but the other officers have not the advantage of a former residence.

Secretary of War Alger has rented the big brick house on the corner of K and Sixteenth streets, the house recently vacated by General (now Ambassador) Draper of Massachusetts. Here it was that the Drapers, who were social leaders, lived in great luxury and were the most conspicuous of the rich congressional people. The house is tall, of red brick, not attractive on the exterior, but very pretty inside. There is one peculiar feature, which is a small ballroom tinted entirely in yellow, the walls being of that lemon tint in satin, the floor stained the same color and highly polished, while the furnishings blend in the same golden tinging till the mellow light seems to flood the whole chamber.

Gary and His Palace.

The residence taken by Postmaster General Gary is the finest in which any member of the cabinet will live. It is a magnificent building of brownstone, palatial in appearance and costly in its appointments. It was built in 1888 by Senator Sawyer, whose daughter, Mrs. Howard White, now dead, presided over the household. Then it was occupied for a few months by Secretary Francis of the Cleveland cabinet. The mansion stands at the intersection of several streets and has a large yard in front, though the entrance is at one side.

Just behind it can be seen the square, jutting porch of the imperial Spanish embassy, it being the first house of the row on the left.

This residence is richly furnished, the polished floors being covered with hand-some rugs, the walls full of costly pictures and the cabinets of unique curios. In the dining room is the famous and beautiful frieze, which extends around the wall of the chamber and shows a bewitching scene in a garden, where Cupids and gay peacocks are sporting amid luxuriant roses. As the postmaster general has a large family of daughters his object in securing this imposing residence was that of giving a great many entertainments.

Where the Attorney General Lives.

The home of Attorney General McKenna is up high on the hills that overlook the city on California avenue. The home is a pretty one and is daintily but not luxuriously furnished. It speaks of neat housekeeping and is full of pretty pictures and cozy nooks that make it delightful. There are two young ladies in the family, Miss Isabel and Miss Marie, the latter to be one of the debutantes of the coming season, while the youngest child, Hildegarde, is a pupil at the Visitation convent in Georgetown.

The girls are all pretty and highly educated, and are expert "bikers" and fond of sports. Mrs. McKenna is a handsome matron, thoroughly domestic in her tastes and a most devoted mother.

Secretary Gage's new residence is the white carved stone house owned and until recently occupied by Mr. Saks. The place is situated on the north side of Massachusetts avenue, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, almost opposite to the home of Mrs. Francis Hodgson Burnett.

The house is not a large one, but as there are but two in the family, the secretary and Mrs. Gage, there is no need for an imposing mansion.

The Wilson Home.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson will shortly move into a lovely home on the corner of S street and Connecticut avenue—2101 S street. The house, which is a double one, is of white brick, and one end juts out like a castle of old. There is only one girl in the family. Mr. Wilson is a widower, as was his predecessor. There are several boys, most of them remaining west. One of the secretary's sons, Jasper, will act as private secretary to his father, and as he is a young man of about 26 will be an addition to the beans at the capital.

Secretary of the Interior Bliss has selected a beautiful home on the southwest corner of Sixteenth and K streets. Secretary Long and family will remain, as before, at the Portland, where they occupy flats.

A Historical Desk.

Charles Loeffler, the veteran door-keeper to the president's room, has a new desk. The old one had served him over 28 years. It was an old desk when it was first turned over to Loeffler. It had been an intimate acquaintance of President Lincoln and in stirring times would have absorbed many things had it been human.

At the old desk thousands of prominent men have sat to write cards to send in to the president. Cabinet members have sat at the desk and written their names for autograph seekers. Great men have congregated around it and talked over matters of the highest importance.

It is an old flat top desk, with a single row of pigeonholes, the lower part containing drawers. It is probable that the desk will be preserved. Loeffler would like to keep it for himself as a companion which has served him faithfully so many years.

Brainerd's School Board Bigger Fish than St. Cloud's.

From the Journal Press.

Brainerd is having the same trouble in its school board over the question of "relief" maps which St. Cloud recently experienced. The same agent who visited this city did business with the Brainerd school board and on Oct. 23, by a majority vote of the board, it was decided to buy a set of the relief maps at the price of $500. This was on Saturday evening, and between that time and Sunday, members of the board were shown copies of the St. Cloud papers containing the accounts of the trouble had with the agent of the supply company in this city. Monday six members of the board—a majority—united in a telegram to the house at Chicago countermanding the order. It is understood that at Brainerd as at St. Cloud the superintendent of schools is against the proposition to purchase the relief maps. At all events, Brainerd was getting beautifully "stuck" on the contract price, as the agent offered the board of this city the maps and fifty desks for $450.

GETTING READY

Every expectant mother has a trying ordeal to face. If she does not

Nature is not given proper assistance.

Mother's Friend

is the best help you can use at this time. It is a liniment, and when regularly applied several months before baby comes, it makes the advent easy and nearly painless. It relieves and prevents "morning sickness," relaxes the overstrained muscles, relieves the distended feeling, shortens labor, makes recovery rapid and certain without any dangerous after-effects.

Mother's Friend is good for only one purpose, viz.: to relieve motherhood of danger and pain.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1897.

What's the matter with Haunal He's all right, thank you.

SOUTH DAKOTA has been redeemed from popocrat mis-rule.

If Bryan can get any comfort from Nebraska he's welcome to it.

The election on Tuesday as a whole resulted satisfactorily to republican principles and sound money.

PRESIDENT McKinley has issued a proclamation designating Thursday, Nov. 25th, as Thanksgiving Day.

BUSHNELL's majority in Ohio will be over 26,000, which is as great as last years considering the vote cast.

CHARLEY TOWNE can now come home and look after his own fences here, after helping the republicans carry Ohio.

TAMMANY's triumph in New York is slim comfort to the silverites, as Tammany refused to endorse the Chicago platform.

ONE man a day is the average number of men killed by foot ball throughout the country. It comes high but we've got to have it.

If New Yorker's prefer to be governed by thieves and rogues, its their concern. The rest of the country can stand it if they can.

The forcing of Hanna onto the republicans of Ohio as senator against their will was a mistake and almost lost the state to the party.

The republicans were uniformly successful on Tuesday where factional fights did not split the party vote, and where a full vote was polled.

The republicans have captured the Maryland legislature and Boss Gorman will have to go to be succeeded by a republican and sound money man.

ONE Kentucky town reports the sale of every weapon in town the day before election. Democratic methods seem to be in vogue again in Kentucky.

GEORGE's adherents in New York endorsed the Chicago platform, and George's vote Tuesday, less than 20,000 out of half a million, is about the number of silverites there.

The Tammany tiger grins and laps his chops with satisfaction. The revenue of the imperial city of Greater New York will be his to loot at pleasure during the next two years. No wonder.

EVERYWHERE Tuesday where the fight was on national issues the republicans held their own, except in Ohio, where a faction of the republicans resented what they considered Hanna's bossism.

EVERY DAY reports come in of some man being shot in the woods by alleged deer hunters, who mistook a man for a deer. There are lots of men going into the woods every day who ought, by law, be prohibited from ever taking a gun in their hands. A few prosecutions for manslaughter would probably have a tendency to reduce the number of fatal mistakes.

CHARLEY TOWNE has been down in Ohio for the past few weeks trying to help Millionaire McLean into the United States Senate, and multi-Millionaire Chapman into the governor's chair. How well he succeeded Tuesday's election discloses, although the free silver papers down there went into raptures over his speeches. Charley certainly has a wonderful gift of gab, and it is a pleasure to hear him talk no matter how erroneous or absurd his theories are. However, he will have his hands full if he tries to be elected to congress from this district next fall, and his millionaire friends McLean and Chapman, of Ohio, ought to come up or put up to help him out.

Brainerd is having the same trouble in its school board over the question of "relief" maps which St. Cloud recently experienced. The same agent who visited this city did business with the Brainerd school board and on Oct. 23, by a majority vote of the board, it was decided to buy a set of the relief maps at the price of $500. This was on Saturday evening, and between that time and Sunday, members of the board were shown copies of the St. Cloud papers containing the accounts of the trouble had with the agent of the supply company in this city. Monday six members of the board—a majority—united in a telegram to the house at Chicago countermanding the order. It is understood that at Brainerd as at St. Cloud the superintendent of schools is against the proposition to purchase the relief maps. At all events, Brainerd was getting beautifully "stuck" on the contract price, as the agent offered the board of this city the maps and fifty desks for $450.

GETTING READY

Every expectant mother has a trying ordeal to face. If she does not

Nature is not given proper assistance.

Mother's Friend

is the best help you can use at this time. It is a liniment, and when regularly applied several months before baby comes, it makes the advent easy and nearly painless. It relieves and prevents "morning sickness," relaxes the overstrained muscles, relieves the distended feeling, shortens labor, makes recovery rapid and certain without any dangerous after-effects. Mother's Friend is good for only one purpose, viz.: to relieve motherhood of danger and pain.

Walker Items.
Dr. J. L. Camp, of Brainerd, was in Walker this week completing arrangements for a lumbermen's hospital for the winter. Next Spring this gentleman will build a sanitarium here.
Hon. Jno. Nevers, mayor of the city of Brainerd and cashier of the Northern Pacific bank of that city, spent the Sabbath in Walker. He must have followed his usual habit of attending church for he did not take his friends for a steamboat ride on his Irene. Perhaps he forgot to bring his uniform along; just as if that would have made any difference.
Ed Lucia arrived in town from Brainerd Tuesday evening to look up a location for a farm and market garden. He has sold his Brainerd property and will build and move his family up at once. He intends buying of Pillsbury south east of town.
Nicely furnished rooms for rent. Pleasant location. Enquire at this office.

Brainerd Man's Queer Courtship.

The Globe of Tuesday contained the following item:
Miss Mattie Bellow, of St. Croix Ind., and August McWilliams, a well known resident of Brainerd, Minn., were married yesterday. The nuptials were the sequel of a strange courtship. McWilliams proposed marriage to Miss Bellow without even having seen her, and the couple became betrothed before even photographs had been exchanged. The romance was of five years duration. McWilliams is reputed to be a wealthy lumberman.

Key to the Klondyke.

The Pioneer Alaska railway is the Northern Pacific, and to that company belongs the credit in connection with the Pacific Coast Steamship company, of having inaugurated the sale of through tickets to points in Alaska. The Northern Pacific was the railway to issue a map of Alaska showing the inland passage from Puget sound to Sitka, Juneau and Chilkat.
Those intending to go to Alaska early next spring, after the snows on the Dyea and Skaguay passes are packed down and the lakes frozen, or at a later date via. St. Michaels and the mouth of the Yukon, should remember that the Northern Pacific is the Pioneer line; runs steam heated trains with dining cars, Pullman Standard and Tourist Sleepers from St. Paul to Tacoma, Seattle and Portland; passengers having the option of going via Helena and Butte City, the latter the greatest silver mining camp in the world, also via. Lake Pend D'Oreille, Idaho, or through the famous Coeur D'Alen mining country.
Early in November we shall issue an illustrated folder replete with Alaska and Klondyke information up to date. Send Chas. S. Fee, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn., two cents in postage, and he will forward you this map.

ELASTIC STARCH has been before the people of the United States for 23 years, and is without doubt the greatest starch invention of the Nineteenth Century. Last year its sales reached the unprecedented number of twenty million packages. It is prepared upon scientific principles by men who have had years of practical experience in fancy laundering. It makes ironing easy, restores old summer dresses to their natural whiteness, and imparts to linen a beautiful and lasting finish. It is the only starch manufactured that is perfectly harmless, containing neither arsenic, alum or any other substance injurious to linen, and can be used even for a baby's powder.

Walker Items.

Dr. J. L. Camp, of Brainerd, was in Walker this week completing arrangements for a lumbermen's hospital for the winter. Next Spring this gentleman will build a sanitarium here.

Hon. Jno. Nevers, mayor of the city of Brainerd and cashier of the Northern Pacific bank of that city, spent the Sabbath in Walker. He must have followed his usual habit of attending church for he did not take his friends for a steamboat ride on his Irene.

Perhaps he forgot to bring his uniform along; just as if that would have made any difference.

Ed Lucia arrived in town from Brainerd Tuesday evening to look up a location for a farm and market garden. He has sold his Brainerd property and will build and move his family up at once. He intends buying of Pillsbury south east of town.

Nicely furnished rooms for rent.
Pleasant location. Enquire at this office.

Brainerd Man's Queer Courtship.

The Globe of Tuesday contained the following item:

Miss Mattie Bellew, of St. Croix
Ind., and August McWilliams, a well-known resident of Brainerd, Minn., were married yesterday. The nuptials were the sequel of a strange courtship.
McWilliams proposed marriage to Miss Bellew without even having seen her, and the couple became betrothed before even photographs had been exchanged. The romance was of five years duration. McWilliams is reputed to be a wealthy lumberman.

Key to the Klondyke.

The Pioneer Alaska railway is the Northern Pacific, and to that company belongs the credit in connection with the Pacific Coast Steamship company, of having inaugurated the sale of through tickets to points in Alaska.
The Northern Pacific was the railway to issue a map of Alaska showing the inland passage from Puget sound to Sitka, Juneau and Chilkat.

Those intending to go to Alaska early next spring, after the snows on the Dyes and Skaguay passes are packed down and the lakes frozen, or at a later date via St. Michaels and the mouth of the Yukon, should remember that the Northern Pacific is the Pioneer line; runs steam heated trains with dining cars, Pullman
Standard and Tourist Sleepers from St. Paul to Tacoma, Seattle and Portland; passengers having the option of going via Helena and Butte City, the latter the greatest silver mining camp in the world, also via Lake Pend D'Oreille, Idaho, or through the famous Coeur D'Alen mining country.

Early in November we shall issue an illustrated folder replete with Alaska and Klondyke information up to date. Send Chas. S. Fee, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn., two cents in postage, and he will forward you this map.

Great Music Offer.

Send us the names and addresses of three or more performers on the

ELASTIC STARCH has been before the people of the United States for 23 years, and is without doubt the greatest starch invention of the Nineteenth Century. Last year its sales reached the unprecedented number of twenty million packages. It is prepared upon scientific principles by men who have had years of practical experience in fancy laundrying. It makes ironing easy, restores old summer dresses to their natural whiteness, and imparts to linen a beautiful and lasting finish.
It is the only starch manufactured that is perfectly harmless, containing neither arsenic, alum or any other substance injurious to linen, and can be used even for a baby's powder.

CHAPTER VI.—(CONTINUED.)

The girl followed him into the tiny sitting room, which her presence seemed to light up like a sunbeam. She was very timid and shy with him, and her voice trembled as she tried to appear at ease.

"Did you have a comfortable journey here?" demanded Ruthven.

"Yes, thank you, Mr. Ruthven. It was rather warm in the train, but we kept the windows open."

"And you like coming—to—to London?"

"Yes, thank you."

"You must try and look on this as your home now, you know."

"Yes, thank you."

They had positively got no more out than this when Garrett bustled into the room.

"Well, Miss Margaret, hadn't you better come upstairs and take off your things? I'm sure you're tired."

The girl turned and prepared obediently to follow her. Ruthven called the housekeeper back.

"What room did you intend Miss O'Reilly to take her meals in, Garrett?"

"Why, didn't you tell me with your own lips that she was to take them in the back dining room?"

"But that will be very dull for her, won't it?"

"That's your lookout. I should say it would be."

"The rooms are so small and close with the folding doors shut. It seems a pity to divide them."

"What do you propose, then, Mr. James?"

"Well, don't you think she could dine with me and Mr. Hamilton?"

"That's as you like, sir. She's fit to do it, in my opinion."

"Oh, of course, only I thought it might be awkward. But, after all, she's a sort of adopted daughter of mine, isn't she, Garrett?"

"Just so, Mr. James, and I say the parlor is the fittest place for her."

"Let it be so then until—until she leaves us again. And her bed room, Garrett, is it nice?"

"It's as good as I can make it, sir; but I can't say it's over and above much."

"I must see it altered to-morrow. Go to the child now, and make her comfortable; and—and—I don't think I shall go out to the club this evening, Garrett. It's Miss O'Reilly's first day at home, and I should like to make her welcome; so get us a nice little dinner here; will you, please?"

"Very good, sir," replied Garrett, chuckling in her sleeve as she hurried upstairs after her charge.

She found Margaret in her own bedroom, gazing fixedly at the four-poster.

"This is not your room, Miss Margaret," she said; "you are to sleep in the next. It's rather small, but you won't mind that, I'm sure."

But the girl had not moved from her position.

"I remember it all now," she said presently, as she turned to the old woman and pointed to the bed. "How you bathed me in warm water, and put on me one of your own night-gowns, and placed me in that bed; and I couldn't believe it at first. It was all so wonderful and strange. Oh! how good you have been to me! How good he has been! How good everybody has been! What was I—what had I done that he should have picked me up and made what I am? Oh! how good he is! how very, very good!"

And Margaret, with the full tide of recollection flowing in upon her, flung herself on her knees by the bedside, and burst into a flood of tears.

Mrs. Garrett was scarcely less shocked at the occasion of the act than at the act herself. She thought the girl had forgotten all about those early days.

"What are you talking of, Miss Margaret? You must never allude to those times, my dear. You must forget them altogether."

"I will never forget them again, Mrs. Garrett. I will remember them all my life. I have been an ungrateful girl to forget them so long."

"Come, come! Mr. James will not be pleased to hear you speak like this. He has just told me you are his adopted daughter, and to be treated as such. So, take off your hat and smooth your hair, and go down and talk to him in the parlor, whilst I get dinner ready for you both."

When Margaret descended to the sitting room she looked still more winning than before, and Ruthven was considerably disconcerted by her raising the hand he extended to her lips. He was not at home in the society of young girls. The mixture of childish simplicity and timidity which she exhibited made him feel almost as shy as herself, and he seized the first reasonable opportunity to leave the room.

Margaret turned to the bookshelves and possessed herself of a volume of Ruthven's plays. She was deep in their perusal when the door was suddenly thrown open, and the bright, handsome face of Hamilton Shore appeared.

The boy and girl did not at first recognize each other. Both had grown out of knowledge, and changed still more than they had grown.

"I beg your pardon," commenced the young man, thinking he addressed a stranger. "Are you waiting to see my uncle?"

"No; I have seen him, I thank you. I am Margaret O'Reilly," she answered. "Margaret O'Reilly?" he exclaimed. "Not little Peg, surely?"

"Yes; I was Peg—but they call me Margaret now. But I don't remember you."

"Why, I am Hamilton Shore, who began to teach you to read. Don't you remember my natural history book, with the colored pictures of animals, which you said were so much like men and women, and Garrett made a row because I scribbled the names of some people I knew under them?"

Margaret clasped her hands to the delight of recollection, whilst the crimson color rushed to her fair face.

"Oh! I do—do, indeed! and you are the boy who was so kind to me? You gave me a four-penny bit the first day we met, and I have never spent it. I have it in my workbox now."

"Have you really? How jolly of you! And how you have grown—I never should have known you again; you are nearly as tall as I am, and you are so—so—"

"So what?"

"You won't be angry with me if I say it, will you?"

"How can I tell before you have said it?"

"Well, then, you are so very pretty. Has no one told you so before?"

"The girls used to say so," replied Margaret, blushing all over; "but then, they were fond of me, you know."

"Well, you are, and no mistake, awfully pretty; and such a lady, too; who ever would have believed it? And had you quite forgotten me?"

"I am afraid I had, but I don't forget you now."

"And uncle, too?"

"Oh, no! How could I forget him? I remembered his face directly I saw it. It looked as kind and good as ever."

"The would-be dramatists don't say he is kind when he sits upon their plays, nor the men at the Cannibal, I fancy, when one of his own had been sat upon. Have you seen his new piece, 'The Poisoned Flower'?"

"No; how should I?"

"Of course. What a fool I am. But you must see it. It is first-rate. The first night it was played the whole house rose to cheer him. I never saw such a sight."

"I have never been inside a theater."

"How nice! Then you've got it all before you. I envy your first sensations; mine happened so long ago that I have forgotten all about them."

At this moment Ruthven re-entered the room.

"Uncle!" exclaimed Hamilton, eagerly. "We must take Margaret to see 'The Poisoned Flower,' she has never been to a play in her life."

"All the better," grumbled Ruthven, "and the longer she keeps away from them the better."

He had already abandoned his design of putting his protegee upon the stage.

CHAPTER VII.

That evening was the pleasantest Margaret ever remembered to have spent. Both Ruthven and his nephew were so anxious to amuse and interest her, the younger man particularly so. He took all the conversation out of his uncle's mouth, while he rattled on to the girl of the wonderful things to be seen in London, and the delight he would have in showing them to her. Hamilton took so much upon himself, in fact, that Ruthven felt compelled at last to remind him that his time was not entirely his own, and that if it were, it was not the custom for young ladies to rush about London under the chaperonage of boys of nineteen. Young Shore looked rather crest-fallen at the rebuke, but his enthusiasm remained unabated.

"Then you'll take her, uncle, will you not?"

"Perhaps; if I have time."

"Don't you think she will enjoy it all immensely?"

"Doubtless. You enjoy your music halls and casinos, but they are the last places in the world I wish to see you visit."

"You are rather hard on pleasure, uncle."

"I am hard on wasted time, at a period of life when time is most precious. Yet, if Margaret likes to visit the theaters—"

"Oh! I should enjoy it above all things, Mr. Ruthven."

He looked at her sparkling, earnest eyes, and feared he should be able to deny her nothing.

"Then we will go sometimes, so long as late hours do not interfere with your health. Tell Mrs. Garrett to get you anything you may require for to-morrow night, and we will pay a visit to 'The Poisoned Flower.'"

How many people who saw the beautiful girl in the dramatist's box on the succeeding evening, and raised their glasses to try and discover who she might be, could have guessed she was identical with a ragged little wail picked up from the police court? Ruthven, himself, appeared to have forgotten it, as he parried the many questions that assailed him and took a delight in mystifying his auditors. Hamilton Shore, who had already whispered sufficient compliments in Margaret's ear to make her feel pleasantly conscious and flattered in his presence, took up a station by her side all the evening, and for the first part of it she was too much dazzled and excited to do more than look at the house and audience in a restless, fluttered manner. But when she had leisure to listen to what was passing on the stage, she became conscious of a history being depicted there that riveted all her attention. "The Poisoned Flower" was supposed to be taken from the French, but Ruthven had twisted both characters and situations so as to suit his own convenience. The principal personages in it were an orphan and her benefactor—a mysterious benefactor, who loaded her with every good, but would never allow that he was entitled to any thanks in return. At the close of the play, when the orphan was surrounded by every sort of trouble, her guardian was discovered to be her father, and able to help her out of them all. This drama appeared to make a great impression upon Margaret. From the moment she began to attend to the story, she became preoccupied, silent, and unlike her former bright self. Hamilton Shore could not imagine what had come over her. Half a dozen times did he try to attract her notice, or rouse her interest, but without success.

"See, Margaret! there are the Prince and Princess of Wales—just come into the box opposite to us. That is the princess with the big bouquet in front of her. I wonder if uncle knows it; how pleased he will be."

Margaret just lifted her eyes for a moment, and then let them dwell upon the figures of the future king and queen of England, and then refixed them on the stage.

"Margaret, you are twice as pretty as the Princess of Wales," whispered Hamilton Shore. "You look as white as a pearl in this gas-light. I should like to call you 'Pearl,' if you don't mind. It's the meaning of your name, you know."

"I don't mind it. You may call me what you like—only don't speak to me just now, please."

"What do you find so absorbing at this moment? I think this the least interesting part of the play. The old man's speeches are long."

"Pray, hush!" replied Margaret; and Hamilton, with a touch of the old sulks, retreated to the back of the box, and left her to herself for the remainder of the evening. When she returned home, and Mrs. Garrett was helping her to undress, she also observed the girl's unusual thoughtfulness.

"Has the gas made your head ache, Miss Margaret? It always do with me, and that's the reason I never put my foot into a theater from year's end to year's end."

"No. We always had gas at Pomona Villa, and I'm used to it," replied Margaret; "but, Mrs. Garrett, I want to ask you a question."

"What is it, my dear?"

"Do tell me all about my father and mother!" exclaimed the girl, with sudden impulse, as she cast her arms about the housekeeper's neck.

"Lor! bless your dear heart! I've nothing to tell, for I know no more of them than the dead. I suppose they're gone, and I hope they're in heaven; but I shan't know them from Adam when I meet them there."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

"LABBY'S" SATIRE.

No Reason for "Vanderbilt Catch" Being Regarded as Pledge of Good Will.

"The event," observes the Times correspondent in America, "is regarded as one more tie between England and the United States, and one more pledge of international good will." The event in question is the marriage of the duke of Marlborough and Miss Vanderbilt. If an English barony is worth about £50,000 it is pretty clear that any one who can sell the title of duchess would be foolish not to get a good price for it. I doubt whether many workingmen, either in England or in America, will feel that there is one more tie between them owing to this contemplated marriage, while British mammas and their daughters will soon be clamoring for protection if all the prizes in the matrimonial market fall to American damsels. The mania for a title is inherent in the Anglo-Saxon race, and it is vain to contend against it. What have we now? Peers selling a share in their titles to the daughters of those who have been successful in finance and can richly endow their daughters! How, with all this, the article maintains its social value surpasses my understanding. Still more surprising, however, is it that a nation that regards self-government as a thing of value should allow this hungry, greedy crew to retain a hereditary right to legislate for them.

But the matter is somewhat a serious one for the United States. That country must be a great loser by the accumulations of its wealth coming across the Atlantic. Titles are, it is true, not in accordance with the simplicity of republican institutions; but, in view of the heavy drain, this might be overlooked, and the parents of any girl might be allowed to buy her a title—say, for £200,000. The public treasury would thus be filled, and the dollars of the girl remain in the country.

How He Liked It.

"Ices are so delicious in summer. Don't you like ice, lieutenant?"

Astrakhan and Fur Coats—Possibilities of the Former as a Good Investment—Attractive Gowns for Children—Scotch Plaids Now the Most Popular.

Together.

DREAMED of Paradise—and still, Though sun lay soft on vale and hill And trees were green and rivers bright, The one dear thing that made delight, By sun or stars or Eden weather, Was just that we two were together.

I dreamed of heaven—with God so near! The angels trod the shining sphere, And each was beautiful; the days Were choral work, were choral praise; And yet in heaven's far shining weather The best was still—we were together!

I woke—and lo, my dream was true, That happy dream of me and you! For Eden, heaven, no need to roam—The foretaste of it all is home. Where you and I through this world's Still work and praise and thank together.

Together weave from love a nest For all that's good and sweet and blest To brood in, till it come a race, A voice, a soul, a child's embrace— And then what peace of Bethlehem weather, What songs as we go on together;

Together greet life's solemn real, Together own one glad ideal, Together laugh, together ache, And think one thought, "each other's sake," And hope one hope—in new-world weather; To still go on, and go together!

—W. C. Gannett.

Attractive Gowns of Children.

The new models in children's garments are not remarkable for really new and original ideas, but they are very attractive, as children's clothes always are, and now is the time for supplying the needed gowns for school wear.

Scotch plaids seem to have the lead in materials, and are to be had in a great variety of all wool and silk and wool fabrics. The poplins, too, are very popular this season, with a great diversity of colors and designs in the plaids, and all the pretty plain colors from which to choose. These make very pretty, dressy gowns for the older girls, and velvet, lace and silk are used in the trimming. Brown and dark colors, and with plain skirts, little bolero jackets of velvet to match, trimmed with a little cream lace or fancy braid, and brightened up by a stock collar of bright plaid silk, the effect is very pretty. Narrow velvet ribbon in black, in the same color as the poplin, is also used for trimming.

Corduroy, velveteen, rep materials, and plain cloths and serges are also employed in the juvenile outfit. Plaids, however, make the most desirable school dresses, as they do not show every particle of dust. The blouse is the prevailing style of bodice for this material, and it is sometimes made with a tucked yoke of plain cashmere which matches some dark color in the plaid. It is finished around the edge with a narrow plaiting of the plain material, which also forms the belt, cuffs and occasionally the sleeves. Serge may be employed instead of cashmere and the yoke, belt, and cuffs covered with narrow braid which makes a very pretty finish. Wide collars of plain material, edged with a band of plaid, are another fancy. Sash ends of the plain stuff, hemmed around and knotted at the belt, are very pretty, and may fall in front or at the back, as you choose. Plain serge gowns are made with a low-cut plaid bodice, with yoke and sleeves of the plain material and a wide band of the plaid around the skirt, but these gowns are not nearly so attractive as the plain serges trimmed with braid, made with a blouse waist opening in front over a bright velvet vest and stock collar. The belt and cuffs are of the velvet, and tiny gold buttons, too, are very decorative on the plain material.

This Bride Says She Was Hypnotized.

About two weeks ago Mr. Newton Peck and Miss Rose Wadsworth of Mantua, Ohio, were united in marriage by Justice of the Peace Charles Street-er. The wedding ceremony was pronounced on a Friday. They lived happily together until the next Tuesday, and then the bride of but four days went to her former home.

She went to Ravenna and was in consultation with several attorneys about her prospects for securing a divorce. She claims that her husband hypnotized her, and that she became his wife while under his mysterious influence. This is not all of the strange story. It seems that the man who married them was not a justice, his commission having expired last April. But the law says that such a marriage is a legal marriage, and if they are separated it will have to be done through the courts.

The Doorstep Milk Supply.

Bottles of milk or cans left upon doorsteps in the early morning hours may be convenient if not absolutely necessary under present existing conditions. That the practice is hazardous to life and health is admitted by all persons who have watched the handling of these receptacles. In several instances the most repulsive looking tramps have been caught drinking from these vessels. Filth and disease laden mouths may easily leave a sufficient number of microbes to contaminate an entire household. Especially is this true in the case of milk, which is one of the most favorable means for the culture of bacilli. Consumers should insist upon having their milk supply served in sealed bottles, and these should never be left in areaways or on doorsteps.

Astrakhan and Fur Coats.

Furs are appearing much earlier than usual, and are quite the proper thing to be worn with straw hats, which are with us so late. Among the novelties in fur is a sealskin Russian jacket, pouched back and front, with six-inch basques below the belt. This belt closes in front with a handsome turquoise buckle; the garment is lined with white brocade. The ingenious girl will readily see that this garment can be copied in seal plush or velvet with very good effect. Three-quarter length coats will be trimmed with sable, astrakhan, Persian lamb and caracul. The fur will be used on the high standing collar and will line the fronts. Coats made entirely of astrakhan are likely to prove popular, and let me say right here that they are one of the best investments possible to make in clothing. A New York girl has an astrakhan coat which she has worn for six winters, and expects to wear six more. When the styles change the coat is changed, and we all know how impossible it is to detect piecing in astrakhan, when it is done with a little care. If long coats are in style, the owner of this garment adds a few inches. And so she changes sleeves and pockets and fronts and tails and is always up-to-date. Then the possibilities of darning astrakhan are so wonderful. All you need are some bits of the material and patience. From your pieces unravel the little ends of cut wool, and sew them one by one on the worn places. When finished it is doubtful if a professional would detect the darn.—The Latest.

"You done shot her, and you got to help me take her home," she said to Moore.

"Well, I stopped her, and I'll take her home," he said.

With that he picked Laura up and never loosed her till he laid her on her bed. He then decamped.

The woman's wound is not dangerous. The police captured Moore shortly after the shooting.

Frills of Fashion.

Crepe de chine, trimmed elaborately with black Chantilly lace in applique makes charming dinner dresses.

Pink is the leading color for evening gowns, and if it is combined with violet you have the latest whim of fashion.

One of the latest novelties in go-trinkets is a little fan chain, fastened at the side of the belt, from which very small fans are suspended.

The noticeable feature of dress trimming is a floral applique, made of silk and lace. Jet, too, is very conspicuously mixed with embroidery.

Light colors in cloth are the correct thing for afternoon and reception gowns, and all sorts of jeweled embroidery on bright velvets are used as a trimming.

Lace is universally used this season on both light and dark gowns. We have lace vests, lace cravats, lace in our hats, and lace everywhere that it can be arranged with good effect.

Plaid hosiery is attractively displayed in the shop windows, and even conceivable mixture of colors is represented in this article of dress. They are silk and wool, silk and lisle, wool, silk, and cotton to suit every shade of temperature.

Lace gowns of every sort and kind are fashionable. White Brussels lace is a very simple design, made of white taffeta, and plainly hemmed the bottom, makes one of the prettiest evening dresses. It has lace transparent sleeves and a fichu trimmed with Brussels edging drawn around the shoulders.

PRETTY EVENING GOWNS.

It is a little early for any decided modes in evening gowns, yet those that have appeared show that pink will still be the popular evening color. Any shade is fashionable, from the deepest rose to the palest blush. In fact, pink is so becoming an evening shade that some women have foreworn all others and will wear it in stuffs of every description.

The skirt has a large spangled design covering the entire front panel and reaching around the waist to the back. The remainder of the skirt is finished around the bottom with small sprays—one in each gore.

For young girls under 18 it is best to choose cashmere or sheer white muslin for the evening gown. Silk of a Dresden pattern is also sometimes selected, but it is not considered in the best of taste. A novel idea is to combine another color with pink, the contrasting shade put on in straps across the lining. These straps run around and may be of any width desired—about three inches is best. After the straps have been put on the lining is covered with gauze, just as though it were plain.

The girl followed him into the tiny sitting room, which her presence seemed to light up like a sunbeam. She was very timid and shy with him, and her voice trembled as she tried to appear at ease.

"Did you have a comfortable journey here?" demanded Ruthven.

"Yes, thank you, Mr. Ruthven. It was rather warm in the train, but we kept the windows open."

"And you like coming—to London?"

"Yes, thank you."

"You must try and look on this as your home now, you know."

"Yes, thank you."

They had positively got no more out than this when Garrett bustled into the room.

"Well, Miss Margaret, hadn't you better come upstairs and take off your things? I'm sure you're tired."

The girl turned and prepared obediently to follow her. Ruthven called the housekeeper back.

"What room did you intend Miss O'Reilly to take her meals in, Garrett?"

"Why, didn't you tell me with your own lips that she was to take them in the back dining room?"

"But that will be very dull for her, won't it?"

"That's your lookout. I should say it would be."

"The rooms are so small and close with the folding doors shut. It seems a pity to divide them."

"What do you propose, then, Mr. James?"

"Well, don't you think she could dine with me and Mr. Hamilton?"

"That's as you like, sir. She's fit to do it, in my opinion."

"Oh, of course, only I thought it might be awkward. But, after all, she's a sort of adopted daughter of mine, isn't she, Garrett?"

"Just so, Mr. James, and I say the parlor is the fittest place for her."

"Let it be so then until—until she leaves us again. And her bed room, Garrett, is it nice?"

"It's as good as I can make it, sir; but I can't say it's over and above much."

"I must see it altered to-morrow. Go to the child now, and make her comfortable; and—and I don't think I shall go out to the club this evening, Garrett. It's Miss O'Reilly's first day at home, and I should like to make her welcome; so get us a nice little dinner here; will you, please?"

"Very good, sir," replied Garrett, chuckling in her sleeve as she hurried upstairs after her charge.

She found Margaret in her own bedroom, gazing fixedly at the four-poster.

"This is not your room, Miss Margaret," she said; "you are to sleep in the next. It's rather small, but you won't mind that, I'm sure."

But the girl had not moved from her position.

"I remember it all now," she said presently, as she turned to the old woman and pointed to the bed. "How you bathed me in warm water, and put on me one of your own night-gowns, and placed me in that bed; and I couldn't believe it at first. It was all so wonderful and strange. Oh! how good you have been to me! How good he has been! How good everybody has been! What was I—what had I done that he should have picked me up and made what I am? Oh! how good he is! how very, very good!"

And Margaret, with the full tide of recollection flowing in upon her, flung herself on her knees by the bedside, and burst into a flood of tears.

Mrs. Garrett was scarcely less shocked at the occasion of the act than at the act herself. She thought the girl had forgotten all about those early days.

"What are you talking of, Miss Margaret? You must never allude to those times, my dear. You must forget them altogether."

"I will never forget them again, Mrs. Garrett. I will remember them all my life. I have been an ungrateful girl to forget them so long."

"Come, come! Mr. James will not be pleased to hear you speak like this. He has just told me you are his adopted daughter, and to be treated as such. So, take off your hat and smooth your hair, and go down and talk to him in the parlor, whilst I get dinner ready for you both."

When Margaret descended to the sitting room she looked still more winning than before, and Ruthven was considerably disconcerted by her raising the hand he extended to her lips. He was not at home in the society of young girls. The mixture of childish simplicity and timidity which she exhibited made him feel almost as shy as herself, and he seized the first reasonable opportunity to leave the room.

Margaret turned to the bookshelves and possessed herself of a volume of Ruthven's plays. She was deep in their perusal when the door was suddenly thrown open, and the bright, handsome face of Hamilton Shore appeared.

The boy and girl did not at first recognize each other. Both had grown out of knowledge, and changed still more than they had grown.

"I beg your pardon," commenced the young man, thinking he addressed a stranger. "Are you waiting to see my uncle?"

"No; I have seen him, I thank you. I am Margaret O'Reilly," she answered. "Margaret O'Reilly?" he exclaimed. "Not little Peg, surely?"

"Yes; I was Peg—but they call me Margaret now. But I don't remember you."

"Why, I am Hamilton Shore, who began to teach you to read. Don't you remember my natural history book, with the colored pictures of animals, which you said were so much like men and women, and Garrett made a row because I scribbled the names of some people I knew under them?"

Margaret clasped her hands to the delight of recollection, whilst the crimson color rushed to her fair face.

"Have you really? How jolly of you! And how you have grown—I never should have known you again; you are nearly as tall as I am, and you are so—so—"

"So what?"

"You won't be angry with me if I say it, will you?"

"How can I tell before you have said it?"

"Well, then, you are so very pretty. Has no one told you so before?"

"The girls used to say so," replied Margaret, blushing all over; "but then, they were fond of me, you know."

"Well, you are, and no mistake, awfully pretty; and such a lady, too; who ever would have believed it? And had you quite forgotten me?"

"I am afraid I had, but I don't forget you now."

"And uncle, too?"

"Oh, no! How could I forget him? I remembered his face directly I saw it. It looked as kind and good as ever."

"The would-be dramatists don't say he is kind when he sits upon their plays, nor the men at the Cannibal, I fancy, when one of his own had been sat upon. Have you seen his new piece, 'The Poisoned Flower'?"

"No; how should I?"

"Of course. What a fool I am. But you must see it. It is first-rate. The first night it was played the whole house rose to cheer him. I never saw such a sight."

"I have never been inside a theater."

"How nice! Then you've got it all before you. I envy your first sensations; mine happened so long ago that I have forgotten all about them."

At this moment Ruthven re-entered the room.

"Uncle!" exclaimed Hamilton, eagerly, "we must take Margaret to see 'The Poisoned Flower,' she has never been to a play in her life."

"All the better," grumbled Ruthven, "and the longer she keeps away from them the better."

He had already abandoned his design of putting his protegee upon the stage.

CHAPTER VII.

That evening was the pleasantest Margaret ever remembered to have spent. Both Ruthven and his nephew were so anxious to amuse and interest her, the younger man particularly so. He took all the conversation out of his uncle's mouth, while he rattled on to the girl of the wonderful things to be seen in London, and the delight he would have in showing them to her. Hamilton took so much upon himself, in fact, that Ruthven felt compelled at last to remind him that his time was not entirely his own, and that if it were, it was not the custom for young ladies to rush about London under the chaperonage of boys of nineteen. Young Shore looked rather crest-fallen at the rebuke, but his enthusiasm remained unabated.

"Then you'll take her, uncle, will you not?"

"Perhaps; if I have time."

"Don't you think she will enjoy it all immensely?"

"Doubtless. You enjoy your music halls and casinos, but they are the last places in the world I wish to see you visit."

"You are rather hard on pleasure, uncle."

"I am hard on wasted time, at a period of life when time is most precious. Yet, if Margaret likes to visit the theaters—"

"Oh! I should enjoy it above all things, Mr. Ruthven."

He looked at her sparkling, earnest eyes, and feared he should be able to deny her nothing.

"Then we will go sometimes, so long as late hours do not interfere with your health. Tell Mrs. Garrett to get you anything you may require for to-morrow night, and we will pay a visit to 'The Poisoned Flower.'"

How many people who saw the beautiful girl in the dramatist's box on the succeeding evening, and raised their glasses to try and discover who she might be, could have guessed she was identical with a ragged little wall-picked-up from the police court? Ruthven, himself, appeared to have forgotten it, as he parried the many questions that assailed him and took a delight in mystifying his auditors. Hamilton Shore, who had already whispered sufficient compliments in Margaret's ear to make her feel pleasantly conscious and flattered in his presence, took up a station by her side all the evening, and for the first part of it she was too much dazzled and excited to do more than look at the house and audience in a restless, fluttered manner. But when she had leisure to listen to what was passing on the stage, she became conscious of a history being depicted there that riveted all her attention. "The Poisoned Flower" was supposed to be taken from the French, but Ruthven had twisted both characters and situations so as to suit his own convenience. The principal personages in it were an orphan and her benefactor—a mysterious benefactor, who loaded her with every good, but would never allow that he was entitled to any thanks in return. At the close of the play, when the orphan was surrounded by every sort of trouble, her guardian was discovered to be her father, and able to help her out of them all. This drama appeared to make a great impression upon Margaret. From the moment she began to attend to the story, she became preoccupied, silent, and unlike her former bright self. Hamilton Shore could not imagine what had come over her. Half a dozen times did he try to attract her notice, or rouse her interest, but without success.

"See, Margaret! there are the Prince and Princess of Wales—just come into the box opposite to us. That is the princess with the big bouquet in front of her. I wonder if uncle knows it; how pleased he will be."

Margaret just lifted her eyes for a moment, and then let them dwell upon the figures of the future king and queen of England, and then refixed them on the stage.

"Margaret, you are twice as pretty as the Princess of Wales," whispered Hamilton Shore. "You look as white as a pearl in this gas-light. I should like to call you 'Pearl,' if you don't mind. It's the meaning of your name, you know."

"I don't mind it. You may call me what you like—only don't speak to me just now, please."

"What do you find so absorbing at this moment? I think this the least interesting part of the play. The old man's speeches are long."

"Pray, hush!" replied Margaret; and Hamilton, with a touch of the old sulks, retreated to the back of the box, and left her to herself for the remainder of the evening. When she returned home, and Mrs. Garrett was helping her to undress, she also observed the girl's unusual thoughtfulness.

"Has the gas made your head ache, Miss Margaret? It always do with me, and that's the reason I never put my foot into a theater from year's end to year's end."

"No. We always had gas at Pomona Villa, and I'm used to it," replied Margaret; "but, Mrs. Garrett, I want to ask you a question."

"What is it, my dear?"

"Do tell me all about my father and mother!" exclaimed the girl, with sudden impulse, as she cast her arms about the housekeeper's neck.

"Lor' bless your dear heart! I've nothing to tell, for I know no more of them than the dead. I suppose they're gone, and I hope they're in heaven; but I shan't know them from Adam when I meet them there."

"LABBY'S" SATIRE.

No Reason for "Vanderbilt Catch" Being Regarded as Pledge of Good Will.

"The event," observes the Times correspondent in America, "is regarded as one more tie between England and the United States, and one more pledge of international good will." The event in question is the marriage of the duke of Marlborough and Miss Vanderbilt. If an English barony is worth about £50,000 it is pretty clear that any one who can sell the title of duchess would be foolish not to get a good price for it. I doubt whether many workmen, either in England or in America, will feel that there is one more tie between them owing to this contemplated marriage, while British mammas and their daughters will soon be clamoring for protection if all the prizes in the matrimonial market fall to American damsels. The mania for a title is inherent in the Anglo-Saxon race, and it is vain to contend against it. What have we now? Peers selling a share in their titles to the daughters of those who have been successful in finance and can richly endow their daughters! How, with all this, the article maintains its social value surpasses my understanding. Still more surprising, however, is it that a nation that regards self-government as a thing of value should allow this hungry, greedy crew to retain a hereditary right to legislate for them.

But the matter is somewhat a serious one for the United States. That country must be a great loser by the accumulations of its wealth coming across the Atlantic. Titles are, it is true, not in accordance with the simplicity of republican institutions; but, in view of the heavy drain, this might be overlooked, and the parents of any girl might be allowed to buy her a title—say, for £200,000. The public treasury would thus be filled, and the dollars of the girl remain in the country.

DREAMED of Paradise—and still, Though sun lay soft on vale and hill And trees were green and rivers bright, The one dear thing that made delight, By sun or stars or Eden weather, Was just that we two were together.

I dreamed of heaven—with God so near! The angels trod the shining sphere, And each was beautiful; the days Were choral work, were choral praise; And yet in heaven's far shining weather The best was still—we were together!

I woke—and lo, my dream was true, That happy dream of me and you! For Eden, heaven, no need to roam— The foretaste of it all is home. Where you and I through this world's weather, Still work and praise and thank to—gether.

Together weave from love a nest For all that's good and sweet and blest To brood in, till it come a face, A voice, a soul, a child's embrace— And then what peace of Bethlehem weather, What songs as we go on together!

Together greet life's solemn real, Together own one glad ideal, Together laugh, together ache, And think one thought, "each other's sake."

And hope one hope—in new-world weather; To still go on, and go together! —W. C. Gannett.

Attractive Gowns of Children.

The new models in children's garments are not remarkable for really new and original ideas, but they are very attractive, as children's clothes always are, and now is the time for supplying the needed gowns for school wear.

Scotch plaids seem to have the lead in materials, and are to be had in a great variety of all wool and silk and wool fabrics. The poplins, too, are very popular this season, with a great diversity of colors and designs in the plaids, and all the pretty plain colors from which to choose. These make very pretty, dressy gowns for the older girls, and velvet, lace and silk are used in the trimming. Brown and blue, green and red are the favorite dark colors, and with plain skirts, little bolero jackets of velvet to match, trimmed with a little cream lace or fancy braid, and brightened up by a stock collar of bright plaid silk, the effect is very pretty. Narrow velvet ribbon in black, in the same color as the poplin, is also used for trimming.

Corduroy, velveteen, rep materials, and plain cloths and serges are also employed in the juvenile outfit. Plaids, however, make the most desirable school dresses, as they do not show every particle of dust. The blouse is the prevailing style of bodice for this material, and it is sometimes made with a tucked yoke of plain cashmere which matches some dark color in the plaid. It is finished around the edge with a narrow plaiting of the plain material, which also forms the belt, cuffs and occasionally the sleeves. Serge may be employed instead of cashmere and the yoke, belt, and cuffs covered with narrow braid which makes a very pretty finish. Wide collars of plain material, edged with a band of plaid, are another fancy. Sash ends of the plain stuff, hemmed around and knotted at the belt, are very pretty, and may fall in front or at the back, as you choose. Plain serge gowns are made with a low-cut plaid bodice, with yoke and sleeves of the plain material and a wide band of the plaid around the skirt, but these gowns are not nearly so attractive as the plain serges trimmed with braid, made with a blouse waist opening in front over a bright velvet vest and stock collar. The belt and cuffs are of the velvet, and tiny gold buttons, too, are very decorative on the plain material.

J. D. Sauter, a Morrison county farmer arrived in the city Tuesday noon from Staples. He has recently lost some horses, and thought he saw them on the west side of the river while on the train. With Sheriff Erickson he went over there but could not find them. He acted in a peculiar manner at the time. The loss has evidently turned his mind, for that evening he fell in a crazy fit in the No. 1 saloon and was taken to jail, and the next day sent home.

Miss Mueller will give a poverty party at her hall on Tuesday next. A large number of invitations have been issued, and the affair is being awaited with great interest. Every one is expected to appear in hard times array. No boiled shirts and stand up collars, no dress coats with tails like swallows, no fine toggery will be allowed at the meeting of our hard times crowd. Instruction will be given as usual from 7:30 to 9. The programme, however, will begin promptly at nine o'clock.

Judge Holland and Court Stenographer Geo. Moody left Brainerd on Saturday for Bemidji, Beltrami county, where Judge Holland will hold the first term of court ever held in the newly organized county. In order to get there it was necessary to go to Walker on the B. & N. M., where they will cross Leech Lake to Steamboat landing and from there to Bemidji, 20 miles, the trip will be made with a team. There are no cases on the docket we understand, and court will be held for the purpose of naturalization.

Last Saturday evening, Oct. 30, was a gala night for Rushworth encampment No. 19, of this city. On that evening 15 new members were taken into the lodge, and the event was made the occasion of a big celebration and a good time, participated in by all the members of the Patriarch's rank in the city and numbers of others from surrounding towns. Grand Chief Patriarch Two, of the state, and a number of past chief patriarchs were present and assisted in the work. At the conclusion of the ceremonies, the entire party, seventy in number repaired to the Arlington, where an elaborate banquet was served and toasts and speech making were indulged in until after 2 o'clock. All present report a most interesting and delightful evening.

MARRIED.

Mr. Joseph Murphy and Miss Louise Reinhardt were married in the Catholic church last Monday morning, Rev. Fr. Lynch conducting the ceremony. Mr. John Murphy was groomsmen and Miss Annie Grossman bridemaid. Only a few near friends and relatives were present. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy left on the noon train for a short wedding trip.
